—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

BIG CITIES ARE becoming very blase concerning murder.

New York's police discover parts of a dismembered body in places miles apart, the torso floating in the river, legs lying in the street. The only clew is a laundry mark.

Once this would have been a "great murder mystery" rivaling the famous Guldensuppe case, or the "Lamp Black Swamp Mystery," which kept reporters searching and imagining for weeks.

But mere individual murders cease to interest.

IN CHICAGO eight young bandits enter a cabaret, one announcing:

Drinkers, entertainers, proprietor, bartender, are lined up, face to the wall. A railroad watchman enters with a big dog, the dog bites the "stickup" men.

Accidentally they turn out all the lights, then fire at random. Three female "entertainers" of the cabaret are killed, half a dozen others wounded. The police find corpses, and hysterical women and men. The railroad watchman followed the bandits' automobile in his own and thinks he shot one or two.

One little chopped up torso is very mild compared with that.

A DECISION, important to the moving picture industry, is announced by the Supreme Court. Ten of the biggest companies are said to be breaking the anti-trust law.

The Supreme Court knows. But let us hope that nothing will be done to destroy prosperity in this great industry, that now leads the world. Even if moving picture men are breaking the anti-trust law, which is more or less of a fossil, it is a comfort to remember that they are also breaking the hearts of competitors in France, Germany, England and all over the world.

If we have something successful, like automobiles or movies, let us give it a chance.

MASSIGLI, French delegate at Geneva, complains to the League of Nations that the huge airplane, DO-X, could suddenly be transformed into a formidable war engine.

He thinks Germany should not have such dangerous weapons.

The Cyrus H. K. Curtis delegate in Russia discovers that the great Soviet tractor factory, located far out of reach, could be transformed, almost over night, to a factory for tanks, guns, war gas and explosives, to be used in war and supply "millions of fighting men."

THE FRENCH and the Curtis delegates are right.

Any big factory can make killing machines. Any big airplane, or small one, can drop poison gas or high explosives.

Napoleon waited in vain for a wind that would take him a few miles across the channel, to invade England.

Now Switzerland, without a foot of waterfront, could secretly build and manufacture enough airplanes, poison gas and TNT to destroy every big city in Britain.

It is a problem for every nation, just as the sawed-off shotgun and small machine gun are a problem for every citizen.

The thing to do is to be prepared for any attack, and, above all, in a position to make the attacking individual or nation regret it.

This nation may realize, too late, that sentimental peace talk isn't a sufficient protection.

THE TARIFF LAW permits Secretary Mellon to forbid importation of goods made by convict labor. Yesterday he issued an order expected to prevent importations from Russia.

If anybody says goods shipped from Russia are made by convict labor, or labor working against its will, goods cannot come in unless the Russian producer and the American importer can prove that the convict labor has not been employed.

This looks like a hint for Stalin, the Russian boss, that we do not want to do business with him.

IF OUR SO-CALLED "depression" is largely "mental," those with important incomes may prepare for a mental shock.

Congressman Snell, chairman of the House Rules Committee, says there will be no cut in income taxes, and, in fact, that there will probably be an increase.

WARDEN LAWES, the head of New York's Sing Sing prison, says the difficulty about gangsters, racketeers and bootleggers is the fact that they are on friendly or at least non-hostile terms with the police.

According to Mr Lawes, 10,000 New York racketeers are known to the police, who do nothing about it, and this complicates the situation.

20 DEGREES DUE HERE TONIGHT

Low Temperatures May Pass Tomorrow; Light Snow Expected to Continue

Snow flurries, accompanied by a frigid gale swept the Pittsburgh district today, presaging a drop in temperature tonight to between 15 and 20 degrees, according to a local weather bureau report.

As a 25-mile an hour wind prevailed, the mercury dropped from the 32-degree mark early today to 26 late today, with likelihood that the season's record low mark would be recorded before midnight. The official minimum this season is 22, recorded November 7.

The storm here is the southern part of a blizzard which originated in the Northwest and today was centered over Ontario, Canada. Temperatures between 15 and 20 were reported from most points in the Middle West. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said.

The brunt of the cold likely will have passed by tomorrow, he asserted, although light snow is expected to continue. The snowfall hardly will be heavy enough to cause hindrance to traffic, Brotzman said.

Blizzard Heads Toward Flood-Stricken Europe

Associated Press.

Grim winter, sweeping over half the world, sent a blizzard driving before a bitter wind across the United States today and out over the ocean toward Europe, where floods and hurricanes have driven thousands from their homes.

On the other side of the ocean France, Germany, Belgium, Holland, England and Austria worked desperately to stem rising rivers, swollen by rains which showed no sign of abating.

The gales which lashed Western Europe and Great Britain over the week-end died down during the night, leaving murky skies and lowered barometers, which threatened another blow. Estimates on the number of deaths charged to the storm ranged between 40 and 50.

GUATEMALA CITY, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—John Barrymore and Dolores Costello sailed for Los Angeles in their private yacht Infanta after a two weeks' stay here.

They visited nearly all the places of scenic and historic interest in this Central American republic. However, they did not make any public appearances, due to the fact Barrymore was suffering from a slight impairment of health and desired to take a complete rest.

Ysaye, Violinist, Sick, Improves

BRUSSELS, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Condition of Eugene Ysaye, Belgian violinist, who has been very ill, was said today to be satisfactory.

His indisposition is said to have been brought on by overwork in preparation of the Walloon opera entitled, "Peter the Miner," which is to be presented next month at the Royal Opera House at Liege.

RUM MISSING, LIEUT. LAVERY SUSPENDED

Raided Man Complains as Seven Cans Disappear; Officer Shown on 'Sick List'

Police Lieut. William Lavery, attached to Center avenue station, is under indefinite suspension, it became known today, while an investigation is being made of the alleged disappearance of seven five-gallon cans of moonshine, part of a lot confiscated in a Hill district raid.

Lavery's superiors denied knowledge of the suspension. On the books at Center avenue station, Lavery is recorded as "absent from duty on account of illness." He has not been on duty for a week, it was said.

Telephoning from his home, Lavery also denied knowing of his suspension, saying that he was ill. From an unimpeachable source, however, it was learned that Lavery has been suspended.

A Logan street bootlegger is alleged to have declared that when police raided his place last Friday they carried away 21 cans of moonshine. The records at the police station show only 14 cans confiscated.

Police Supt. P. P. Walsh and Inspector Albert Beebe declined to discuss the case.

JURY CONVICTS HELEN HESS

Mrs. Helen Hess, of Uniontown, alleged "Queen of the Underworld" of Fayette County, today was found guilty of violating the Mann act.

A jury in Federal Court, which for two days had listened to the testimony, returned a verdict of guilty after deliberating two hours.

The case was given to the jury without the defendant being called to testify.

After the verdict the woman's bail was increased to $2,000. Her attorney said he probably would file a motion for a new trial.

Blast Hurts Baby, Bomb Gang Sought

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Resources of the "Secret Six" crime fighting committee today were utilized in the search for bombers responsible for a dynamite blast which painfully injured an 8-months-old child at the home of a Ford Motor Company official last night. The explosion periled four other children and their parents.

City Will Grant Jobless Apple Vending Permits

Apple-selling as a relief for unemployment and want is to be tried out in Pittsburgh beginning next Monday. In New York the plan has been in vogue for some weeks.

James M. Clark, director of public safety, is responsible for announcement of the plan. The director held a conference with Alex Murdock, representing the Apple Growers' Exchange, Penn avenue, and it was decided to try out the apple selling for one month, and if it proves successful, to continue it nidefinitely.

Applications for the right to sell apples will be filed at the city welfare department, and will be referred to charity organizations to determine if the applicant is worthy of a permit.

Each vendor will bear a sign on the hat, reading:

"Buy apples, 5 cents each. Unemployed."

Successful applicants will be issued cards, upon presentation of which at the Apple Growers' Exchange they will be sold a box of apples for $2. No choice in locations will be given the vendors, according to Clark.

When Maurice Arndt, Herron Hill grocer, announced today that he would give away a carload of apples to deserving poor persons, a crowd of severa lthousand jammed the Pennsylvania yards at Liberty avenue and Thirty-third street.

Police reserves were on hand to keep the crowd in line, but so great was the rush that several persons were reported slightly bruised.

Shivering men, women and children who had the patience to wait were rewarded with baskets of fruit.

Police, who estimated the crowd at 7,000, said that many of the recipients returned for a second helping.

FOOD POISONING KILLS WOMAN

Mrs. Nathala McCuen, 73, of 226 Florida avenue, Mt. Lebanon, is dead today and her two daughters are seriously ill from poisoning, supposedly resulting from something eaten at yesterday's evening meal.

Dr. G. C. McMaster reported to the coroner that Mrs. McCuen had become violently ill last night and died this morning. He said he suspected a canned food of which the mother and her daughters, Bess and June, had partaken, but was not certain this was the cause.

Coroner W. J. McGregor detailed a deputy to investigate.

A post mortem examination of Mrs. McCuen's body by Dr. Theodore R. Helmbold, coroner's physician, showed evidences of food poisoning, he reported. An analysis of the contents oft he stomach will be made.

Samples of bacon, potatoes, apple dumplings, tea, water and canned milk eaten by the three last night were taken for analysis.

SOVIET HORDES MARCH AS WAR TRIAL OPENS

Eight Leaders of 2,000 Held In 'Plot' Laid to World Powers Face Stern Judges

International News Service.

MOSCOW, Nov. 25.—In a building which in the time of the czars was one of Russia's most exclusive and aristocratic clubs, eight men went on trial here today charged with implication in an alleged gigantic international conspiracy aimed at wrecking the Soviet regime.

The eight defendants, once prominent engineers and university professors, faced three stern judges of the specially constituted court before an "audience" of 1,500 of the proletariat.

Two of them were represented by counsel. The remaining six refused legal representation.

2,000 ARRESTED

A total of 2,000 persons have been arrested for implication in the alleged conspiracy. Seventy have been dealt with by the Ogpu, or Soviet secret police, without trial, many of them being executed.

As the long-awaited trial got under way, during which the Soviet government plans to introduce copious testimony in support of its allegation that France, Britain, Poland, Rumania and other European countries were implicated in the conspiracy, hundreds of thousands paraded in the streets outside. They carried placards protesting against the alleged machinations of capitalist countries against the Soviet regime.

The indictment on which the eight men are being tried alleged that these nations conspired to sabotage Russia's industry and then overwhelm the country by force of arms.

NATIONS DEFIED

All Moscow newspapers carried three-inch headlines shouting defiance at capitalistic nations accused by the press of plotting war against the Soviet.

Cartoons depicted Raymond Poincare, of France, as a war monster with claws and teeth of a hippopotamus.

Chief of Staff Kamenev gave the press the following statement:

"When war comes we'll make a plan to crush the enemy within a definite time, the same as our five-year industrialization plan, for instance.

Provides Bail

MRS. GRACE N. LEVINE

LEVINE FREED ON WIFE'S BAIL

VIENNA, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—With his wife furnishing the funds, Charles A. Levine, American aviation enthusiast, was released in $7,000 bail today after being held in jail for a week on suspicion of being engaged in a counterfeiting scheme.

Mrs. Levine cabled the bail money from New York.

Levine was overjoyed, but continued to express complete mystification as to why the charges had been made against him, asserting:

"I received fair treatment, but the charges are either a preposterous mistake or due to the malevolence of my enemies. I never planned any counterfeiting. I merely wanted flying medals like Col. Lindbergh's."

Levine expressed regret that the name of Mabel Boll, the so-called "Diamond Queen," had been "dragged into this affair." Miss Boll was with Levine at the railway station at Semmering Spa when he was taken into custody.

ARREST MAN IN DEATH PLOT

Victim Tells of Flight From Automobile at Oakmont; Suspect Accused in Lottery

Declaring that he was "taken for a ride," Paul Klepner, of Oakmont, today made information against Joseph Getty, of Oakland avenue, charging him with felonious shooting. Klepner told county detectives that a revolver was emptied at him as he fled the scene of the attempted slaying.

Klepner, detectives say, told them that he was a "pick up" man for Getty's "numbers" lottery, and this afternoon County Detectives Samuel Whisner and Tom Calig raided an alleged lottery in Oakland avenue and arrested Getty. An information charging the maintenance of a lottery was filed against Getty before Alderman George Anderson.

According to county detectives, Getty went to Klepner's Oakmont home last night and made him "takea ride." Getty stopped his machine in Penn Township and said, according to county detectives:

"Now, you are going to get yours."

To which, detectives say, Klepner replied:

"Can that stuff; I'll fight you fair."

Both alighted from the car, and Klepner told detectives that he fled when he saw a revolver in Getty's hand. Getty emptied the revolver at him. Klepner charges in the information, which was sworn out before Justice of the Peace W. E. Blair, of Oakmont.

Spear testified his car had been sideswiped by another automobile.

The father testified he and his two sons were waiting for a trolley car when they were run down.

The jury found him guilty also of assault and battery on Eli and Robert Wratcher. Visiting Judge Miles I. Potter, of Union and Snyder counties, will sentence Spear Monday.

President Supports Reed For Immigration Change

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—President Hoover today announced himself to be in accord with Senator Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, on his proposal for revision of the immigration laws. More selectivity and flexibility is needed, the President said.

Mr. Hoover explained that the Department of Labor has refused visas to aliens who might become public charges, in view of the unemployment situation, and as a result, the issuance of visas has dropped from 24,000 to 6,000 a month.

The laws, however, should be revised, Mr. Hoover said, as it is not wise to deal permanently with the matter by departmental regulation.

Declaring what the country needs is a general awakening "to the failures of local governments to protect its citizens" from the depredation of organized criminals, the President denied widely-published reports that he intended to ask Congress for additional legislation designed to curb racketeering. Mr. Hoover said:

"Every single state has laws to meet the situation. What is needed is enforcement, not more laws."

PITTSBURGH'S CANAL DEMANDS WIN YOUNGSTOWN'S AID

MISSISSIPPI BODY JOINS IN DRIVE

Rae Presents Plea for Group To Re-indorse Ohio River Erie Plan in Entirety

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25. — A request from Pittsburgh delegates that the executive committee of the Mississippi Valley Association re-indorse the Ohio River-Erie Canal in its entire length from the Ohio River to the lake front, was being considered today by the committee. The Pittsburgh delegation met with the executive body yesterday and made its request, following the afternoon convention session.

RAE, SPOKESMAN

James Rae, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, was spokesman for the local delegation. Others who spoke were A. B. Shepherd, Councilman W. Y. English and George S. Davison. It was understood the executive committee looked favorably upon the request of the Pittsburgh delegates.

It was stated the request of the Pittsburghers meets with the approval of the Youngstown delegation. At first there were rumors of dissension between representatives of the two cities but today there is harmony between the two delegations. Youngstown delegates are asking that the canal extend from their city to the lake but they would be more than satisfied if the waterway was extended to the Ohio River near Beaver as the Pittsburghers are asking.

PURNELL INDORSES PLAN

The entire canal project from Pittsburgh to the lake front was detailed in an address made by R. Templeton Smith, of Pittsburgh, at the afternoon session. Smith spoke at length on the benefits of the canal to Pittsburgh business. Frank Purnell, president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, also spoke and pointed out that the river improvement is practical from an engineering standpoint if the through rate is practical. He said Youngstown interests had supported for 20 years the through canal as indorsed by the Pittsburghers.

It was understood that if the through canal is frowned upon by the association, both Youngstown and Pittsburgh delegates will offer resolutions requesting the slack water project for the improvement of the Beaver and Mahoning rivers.

The leaders of both the Youngstown and Pittsburgh delegations have come to the conclusion there must be no quarrel between them and that harmony must exist at all times.

In his address yesterday Purnell urged the association indorse again the entire project and recommend to the War Department board of engineers its early approval so that money may be made available by Congress at its next session. The commencement of work upon this waterway would play an important part in helping to relieve the unemployment situation, he said.

61 MILES TO BE IMPROVED

The Ohio River-Erie canal improvement would start at the junction of the Beaver and Ohio Rivers, 25 miles north of Pittsburgh. The Beaver River is ormed by the junction of the Shenango and Mahoning rivers at New Castle, Pa. The Mahoning River passes through Youngstown and Niles, O. At the latter city Mosquito Creek empties into the Mahoning River. It is proposed to improve the Beaver and Mahoning rivers and Mosquito Creek, a total length of 61 miles, installing locks and dams and deepening the channel to 12 feet.

Mosquito creek rises on a summit level which is 29 miles long, eight miles of which will be transformed into a lake one mile wide by the canal dam at the southern end of the level. From the north end of the proposed lake there is an easy descent for 16 miles by water courses to the lake near Ashtabula. The total distance from the Ohio River to the lake is 101½ miles of which 61 miles is covered by existing water courses.

HURLEY, SPEAKER

The waterway in its entire length has been declared by United States Army engineers to be the best, most practicable and the least expensive of all routes proposed to connect the Ohio River with the lake. Army engineers, in the report of Col. Kuntz in 1925, estimated the cost to complete the project at $101,000,000, which the engineers believe to be accurate and not an unreasonable sum to be expended for so important a link.

MRS. PAULSCAK TAKES STAND IN SLAYING TRIAL

Defense Opens Battle for Acquittal in Courtroom Killing; Kin Testifies

Mrs. Clara Paulscak, on trial in Criminal Court for the slaying of her husband, Michael, August 27 in the Desertion Court room, took the stand in her own defense as her defense opened this afternoon.

That she had brought the gun into the courtroom as evidence and that the weapon exploded when her husband grappled with her, was testified by Mrs. Paulscak.

Upon request of Attorney Edward Coll, defense counsel, the jury was taken to the probation office, in the Desertion and Non-Support Court, where the shooting was perpetrated.

The move marked the opening of the defense, the state having closed shortly before with the testimony of the dead man's mother and two county detectives, in an attempt to show that the slaying was planned by the defendant.

Attempting to show that the killing of Paulscak was planned by his wife, Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Adler today called witnesses who testified Mrs. Paulscak tried to buy a gun from them before the shooting.

Louis Myers, a hardware dealer, of 2122 Fifth avenue, testified Mrs. Paulscak came to his store the morning of the shooting. She wanted to buy a revolver, he said.

When he showed her a gun for $5, he testified, she told Myers that she would go to another store and try to find bullets to fit the weapon. Mrs. Paulscak never came back, he told the jury. Myers testified he knew the Paulscaks slightly.

'RUINED MY LIFE'

Testifying that he was a friend of the dead man, James Balamutis, 25, 15 Orr street, testified that a day or so before the shooting Mrs. Paulscak said to him:

"Steve ruined my life, and he won't ruin anybody else's life."

Under cross-examination Balamutis could not remember any other part of the conversation.

At noon today, the prosecution had one more witness to call. Adair said he probably would finish the state's case today.

Testifying that he was a friend of Mrs. Paulscak, Walter Packard, 4 Kirkpatrick street, said she saw him the night before the shooting, and said:

"Have you got a gun? I want to buy it."

Packard said he told her he had no gun.

Madeline Paulscak, a sister of the dead man, said she was in the court office when she saw her sister-in-law fumble with her handbag, take out a gun, point it at her brother and fire. Then, she testified, Mrs. Paulscak fired a second shot while he was slumping down on the floor.

TELLS OF THREAT

After Mrs. Paulscak was arrested, she tried to say something to the woman as they rode down in the elevator, but the prisoner replied:

"Shut up, or I will fill you full of lead, too."

The witnesses called told contradictory stories of the number of shots fired. Some testified three shots were fired, others said they heard only two.

'OLD GUARD' IN HOUSE YIELDS

Lame-Duck Congress Likely To End Big Three's Power; Norris Bill Will Pass

By GEORGE R. HOLMES, International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. —The iron grip which a little coterie of Republican leaders has maintained on the House of Representatives for several years will be broken next week when the lame-duck Congress assembles for its swan song.

Legislation which has never been permitted to see the light of day in the severely disciplined House is to be brought out of dusty pigeonholes and voted upon. The Republican old guard has surrendered.

GOVERNMENT OPERATION

The net result probably will be that the government will go into the business of operating the Muscle Shoals power plant, through passage of the Norris bill; that the Wagner unemployment legislation will be passed, that the Shipstead anti-injunction bill will be enacted, and perhaps the first constitutional step will be taken to eliminate lame duck sessions of Congress.

All of these and similar measures supported for years by the Democratic-Insurgent coalition in the Senate have been blocked in the House by the so-called "big three" on the Republican side—Speaker Longworth, Representative Snell, of New York, chairman of the all-powerful Rules Committee, and Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the majority leader. Bulwarked by a Republican majority so large as to defy opposition, they have ruled with an iron hand and decided among themselves what legislation would be permitted to come to a vote.

CHANGED BY ELECTION

The election three weeks ago changed all that, notwithstanding the fact the new Congress does not assemble for a year hence.

The leaders want to avoid an extra session that would bring the new Congress together next spring. The Democrats and Republican Insurgents are in a position to force one. Consequently, the Republican leadership has decided to "play ball" with the Insurgents in the approaching short session. They are willing to trade. It marks the end of a virtual dictatorship in the House that has been described with some justice, as more rigid and severe than the days of "Cannonism."

SECOND PARTY QUITS BRUENING

BERLIN, Nov. 25. — (AP.) — Chancellor Bruening's government ran into new difficulties today when the Economic party notified the chancellor it no longer supported the cabinet.

Johannes Bredt, minister of justice and a member of the Economic party, accordingly has presented his resignation.

The party's action was based on a decision not to support any government influenced directly or indirectly by the Socialists. This is the second party to withdraw its support from the cabinet, the Farmers' League having previously seceded, although Martin Schiele, its leader and minister of agriculture, remained in the ministry at President von Hindenburg's request.

Despite today's blow, it was generally taken for granted that Chancellor Bruening will continue his course, and if necessary challenge the Richstag to unseat his ministry.

Laborer Hangs Self By Belt in Mail Car

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Gorge K. F. Frew, 26, a laborer, was found hanging by his belt in a mail car in the D. L. & W. Railroad yards.

Frew came here from his home near Scranton, Pa., about two years ago following his marriage. His wife works in a Scranton office, it was said. Joseph Carson, a caretaker of a house at 30 Romaine avenue, in which Frew had been living until a few weeks ago, telephoned Mrs. Frew that her husband was killed in an accident.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 25. —(AP.)—Herbert R. Kastor, 29, a musician, shot and killed his wife, Helen Kastor, 22, and then wounded himself here today. FOREIGN TRADE SHOWS GAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Evidence of improvement in the stability of business in nearly every commercially important foreign country is indicated in dispatches to the Commerce Department from its agents abroad. Foreign credits and collections have been greatly improved during the past few months, according to A. S. Hillyer, who states that this is due in major part to the "seasonal revival in many industries and trade."

Bankruptcies and protested bills are less numerous and involve smaller amounts, Mr. Hillyer says. Where unrest occurs in certain countries, there has been a tendency among merchants to operate conservatively, keeping their stocks reduced and making their purchases cover only necessities.

SIFT VOTE COST OF DRYS, ANTIS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Expenditures of both the prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists in the recent senatorial elections will be investigated by the Senate Campaign Funds Committee. Subpenas were issued today for hearing here next Tuesday of the prohibitionists and a hearing in New York the following Thursday of the anti-drys.

All senatorial campaign expenditures by the Anti-Saloon League will be investigated here, while advances made by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment will be scrutinized at the New York hearing.

Meanwhile, the prohibition bureau will face a new group of purse-strings holders when it asks for enforcement funds this winter.

"Hard boiled" is the way Chairman Shreve, of the House Appropriations Sub-Committee for the Justice Department, describes his group. Shreve, a Pennsylvania Republican, declared:

"We want to be fair, but unless the Prohibition Bureau makes a good case of its needs it will not get the additional $2,000,000 requested."

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—A black watch is protecting Father Knickerbocker. ROBINSON RAPS EXTRA SESSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Desire to avoid an extra session of Congress was voiced today by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, upon his return to the Capital.

Reiterating his stand for national prohibition, the Democratic leader predicted that the Democrats would not declare themselves for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in the 1932 platform. He expressed the opinion also that the prohibition amendment would not be repealed in the early future.

Senator Robinson issue a statement which he said was in substance that which he wrote to President Hoover recently regarding an extra session of the new Congress, and expressed surprise his letter had not been made public.

Woman Arrested Evicting Mother, 2 Children

After she attempted to dispossess a mother and two small children for non-payment of rent today, according to constables from Alderman John P. Kearcher's office, Mrs. Emma Dessell, 39, of 1102 Friberg street, was arrested on a malicious mischief charge. She was to be given a hearing before Kearcher late today.

The complainant is Mrs. Margaret Wilt, 23, of 118 South Twelfth street, South Side, the tenant.

In her complaint, Mrs. Wilt charged that before her family arose this morning, Mrs. Dessel came to their home, and demanded payment of two months' back rent. When this was not forthcoming, she alleged, the woman began moving furniture into the street. The complainant remonstrated, she reported, and then was ordered into the street.

Following Mrs. Dessel's arrest, the family moved back into their quarters. Mrs. Wilt told constables her husband had been out of work for months and that she was working in butcher shops and grocery stores to get food for her children.

Coolidge Sees Rail Trade 'Key' to Business Boom

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 25.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The national and state governments are nearly a unit in their expressed desire to promote a revival of business. Probably as soon as legislatures meet they will propose remedies for much business with which they are not now connected. Before taking jurisdiction over other economic activities, it might be well to put those already under government control in a profitable and prosperous condition. When that is done people would feel more confidence in surrendering more of their business to local and federal supervision.

Calvin Coolidge

Federal farm marketing is in the experimental stage and clearly entitled to a chance to demonstrate its value. But for many years the states and nation have had complete regulation of railroads. Transportation is a key industry. If it can be revived almost all business will improve. The railroads have been asked to spend money and have responded. They cannot expend money they do not have. Undoubtedly the railroad presidents could tell how they can get more money and be relieved of some restrictions with little burden to the public. Here is an opportunity for the governmental commissions to take the lead in reviving business and increasing employment by giving the railroads a chance. CALVIN COOLIDGE.

SUMNER SCORES U.S. GANG DRIVE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Proposed congressional action setting the federal government to war on racketeers in New York, Chicago and other big cities was assailed today by Representative Sumner (Dem.), of Texas, ranking Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee, which would consider bills to this end.

The statement of Sumner coming after Representative Snell (Rep.), of New York, chairman of the House Rules Committee and one of the "big three" of that body, also derided the proposals, forecast vigorous opposition on all such measures.

Sumner declared he opposed the proposal on the ground that the war on racketeering is a job for each state and city. Snell said he was opposed to centralizing all power in Washington. Sumner said:

"Unless civilization is in a process of decay, racketeering in New York, Chicago and other cities can and will be stopped by the people of those cities when they are aroused from their lethargy."

FRANCO HUNTED THROUGH SPAIN

MADRID, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—The hunt for Maj. Ramon Franco, Spanish air ace, who escaped from the convent-jail in which he was imprisoned a month ago, continued throughout Spain today.

Guards watched highways, airports and railroad stations, poking guns and bayonets into covered vehicles that might hide the fugitive flier or his companion in flight, Commander Eduardo Reyes, of the Spanish Foreign Legion.

Franco was serving a 10-month sentence for conviction on a charge of writing articles criticizing the government and favoring establishment of a republic. Reyes had been convicted of bigamy.

Government officials expressed regret at Franco's action, which they declared amounted to the breaking of his parole rather than a spectacular escape. Franco, according to prison authorities, was allowed to move freely about the prison, even to the extent of leaving the building on promise to return. His imminent removal to a military prison for the remainder of his term was believed to have motivated his dramatic escape.

The text of the American amendment provides that "if during the validity of the accord a signatory feels its security menaced it may modify its observance of all clauses except those applied to war."

The amendment pointed out that the United States is willing to accept the proposed commission only as an agency for centralizing functions to disseminate information regarding armaments, but refuses to recognize its proposed judicial powers.

The conference today adopted a method of global limitation for naval effectives, the vote being 12 against 1. Russia opposed it and there were a number of abstentions.

ENDOWMENT GROWTH TOLD

Raymond B. Fosdick Heads Speakers, Urges Tariff Repeal to Aid Business

Anniversaries of the birthday of Andrew Carnegie and the beginning of classes at Carnegie Institute of Technology were celebrated today. Nearly 2,500 Carnegie Tech students and teachers marched from the campus to Carnegie Music Hall, where Raymond B. Fosdick, lawyer and political economist, was the principal speaker. He suggested as a factor to help the economic situation the repeal of the recently enacted tariff law.

BAKER TELLS OF GROWTH

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Tech, described how the original endowment of $2,000,000 for the founding of the institution had grown to $16,000,000 and the enrollment from 120 to 6,500. He announced an increase of $85,366.09 in endowment during the last year.

A gift of $10,000 for a scholarship endowment by Mrs. Josiah Cohen, widow of the late Judge Cohen, widow of Judge Cohen, and a gift valued at between $15,000 and $20,000 by William F. Lloyd were part of the endowment increase mentioned by Dr. Baker.

Speaking on the "International Implications of Our Economic Depression," Mr. Fosdick said:

"How can we expect to maintain our industrial health when we are linked like Siamese twins to nations in which industrial disease is rampant?

FACE NEW PROBLEMS

"My only suggestion might be that we try to adapt our political ideas and actions to our new economic internationalism.

"The revision of our anti-trust laws, as suggested by Thomas W. Lamont, might bring material encouragement. The repeal of our recently enacted tariff law with its vicious boomerang against national trade would undoubtedly help. Similarly, we could and probably should have legislation establishing a national system of employment exchanges, unemployment insurance, advance planning of public works and other emergency remedies.

"The fundamental difficulty with our present situation is that two distinct principles are struggling for mastery. In spite of economic tides overflowing the world, we still are trying to maintain our old, nationalistic water-tight compartments. Our political conceptions have not caught up with our machines. In a new age of interdependence we are hanging desperately to our old definitions of sovereignty.

OUTWORN IDEAS

"We are trying to run a twentieth century industrial world with eighteenth century political ideas. Living in the ideas of the days of Jefferson and Hamilton, we repeat the Declaration of Independence as if nothing had happened since 1776.

"A leader in everything that relates to technical aspects of economic interdependence, we do not see—at least will not admit—that the advice contained in Washington's farewell address is as obsolete as the stagecoach in which he rode from New York to Philadelphia."

Representatives of classes from 1908 to 1932 attended the celebration, as well as seven members of the faculty that met the classes first in 1905. Motion pictures of Andrew Carnegie were shown.

SOCIETIES FIGHT COURT, LEAGUE ALLIANCES

57 Patriotic Groups Protest U. S. Adherence; To Place Action Before Congress

By EARL L. SHAUB.
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The American Coalition of Patriotic Societies is on record today against United States adherence to the League Court and the League of Nations and all entangling alliances.

This coalition co-ordinates the activities of 57 patriotic societies and fraternal organizations.

Chairman John B. Trevor, of New York, told the assembly he would draft a vigorous resolution today and see that it is presented to Congress as soon as that body convenes.

The battle against the Court and the League was begun and waged by H. Ralph Burton, a Washington attorney, who told the coalition yesterday that the Kellogg pact and the League of Nations are opposed to each other in five different respects and that the pact is meaningless in the light of League provisions.

ENTANGLEMENT SEEN

He spoke of the so-called "Stimson consultation pact" and declared:

"Mr. Hoover has not ceased his efforts to bring us into a foreign alliance in spite of the fact that it has been announced that he would not present the League Court question to Congress at the coming session."

The 57 delegates present will return to the organizations they represent and urge that similar action be taken by them separately.

These organizations include: Sons of the American Revolution, American War Mothers, Allied Patriotic Societies, Daughters of the American Revolution, Military Order of the World War, National Sojourners, Patriotic Order Sons of America, Independent Order of Americans, Daughters of Americans, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, American Women's Legion, Dames of the Loyal Legion, Disabled Veterans of the World War, American Vigilant Intelligence Federation and others.

WOULD CURB ALIENS

The coalition also passed resolutions calling for a drastic tightening of immigration for the next two years, the deportation of undesirable aliens, and governmental action to protect American institutions and industries from Soviet activities.

The dumping of Soviet goods in America came in for a lengthy discussion, and the chairman was instructed to prepare a resolution calling for a cessation of this practice.

Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, and head of the Communist investigating committee, told the coalition his committee will recommend that the Department of Justice be given authority to deal with Communistic activities.

Representative Johnson, of Washington, said he agreed with Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, that a two-year ban be placed on immigration.

$520,000 RAMP UP TO COUNCIL

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang continued yesterday to send improvement measures to Council.

One of the most important was a bill for the widening of Carson street to take care of contemplated ramps to the West End-North Side Bridge being constructed by the county. The total cost is estimated at $520,000, including $400,000 damages.

Another bill provided an agreement with the state for improvement of Lebanon road in the city. This road runs to the new city-county airport. Another agreement called for city and state co-operation on the improvement of the Perry highway with property damage estimated at $3,000.

A slight change in the grade of the Horace street ramp was asked in another ordinance.

The improvement of the Monongahela wharf, which Lang informed Council would be a good job to undertake to provide employment, will cost $48,000, according to estimates. This work probably will be started soon.

The department also asked $20,000 for a new sewer along Independence street from Hamburg street to the existing sewer on McCartney street.

Man Held for Court Admits 14 Robberies

James Moore, 22, Negro, of 621 Whittier street, today was held for court on 14 counts of entering and larceny at a hearing before Magistrate Charles Papale in East End Police Court. Moore was arrested a week ago, having been detected after entering an A. & P. store at 5807 Penn avenue at a late hour.

JOBLESS GIRLS ASSISTED BY Y. W. C. A.

Employment Bureau Places Workers; Free Instruction Aids Idle Add to Ability

Pittsburgh branches of the Y. W. C. A. have joined in the national campaign against unemployment, and all are doing much to secure jobs for unemployed girls and women who come under their jurisdiction, it was learned today.

An employment bureau has been doing much to alleviate the situation, Miss Dorothy S. Nauman, of the association, pointed out. Classes to show girls under stress of temporarily tightened circumstances how to make old clothing go farther, with no sacrifice to personal appearance, have been started. Talk by department store personnel managers have been given. At these talks girls are told best methods to pursue in applying for jobs. Many have been placed through the employment bureau, Miss Nauman said.

CLASSES IMPROVE JOBLESS

Several weeks ago, the Y. W. C. A. official pointed out, classes on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Central branch, Chatham street, were inaugurated. These classes have for their purpose showing girls how to make use of leisure time while temporarily out of work, in order to improve themselves for positions to come. A social hour is held afterwards. Classes in stenography, cooking and maid service are planned shortly.

6 ATTEND CONFERENCE

Six Pittsburgh women attended the national emergency conference of Y. W. C. A., on problems affecting jobless girls and the general unemployment situation, held in New York recently. Plans were discussed for relief, and instructions issued to each of the 567 Y. W. C. A. groups throughout the United States to take immediate action.

Those who attended from here were Mrs. W. J. Gilmore, Mrs. John R. McCune, Miss Esther Hawes, Miss Helen Crawley, Miss G. V. Shand and Miss Katherine Kantz.

'BUY NOW' PLEA IN WEST VIEW

J. J. Kassouf, executive secretary of the North Side Chamber of Commerce, spoke on "Buy Here and Now" at the monthly meeting of the West View Board of Trade in the Junior High School last night. He estimated that if citizens of the community would co-operate with merchants by purchasing Christmas needs in their own locality, it would mean that at least $100,000 in business would accrue in West View.

W. J. Shanes, a director of the Pittsburgh Motor Club and chairman of the road emergency committee of the club, spoke on "Traffic and Highway Safety."

BOY KIDNAPED, BEATEN, BOUND

Beaten by two young men who dragged him into an automobile, John Ballantyne, 18, son of Dr. J. Van Ballantyne, of 429 Locust street, Edgewood, was thrown from the machine and left lying along the Freeport road near Montrose early today. His feet bound by shoe laces and his hands fastened behind his back with toy handcuffs, young Ballantyne was picked up by a passing motorist and taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

Dr. Ballantyne, who has offices in the Wilkinsburg Bank Building and who is a member of the staff of the Pittsburgh Hospital, was summoned to the hospital. After receiving treatment, the youth was taken home by his father. He suffered a bruised forehead, where, he said, he had been struck with a revolver butt.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—After a night of anxiety over the non-arrival of two young aviators who left Caldwell, N. J., in a midget plane on a flight to South America, word was received at the Curtiss Airport today of the pilots' safety. They were forced down in a field near Baltimore last evening, but landed without injury, according to word received at the airport here.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—A New York barber had two tired hands today, but he was happy, for he proved himself "a good fellow." Wishing to aid unemployed, he cut 37 heads of hair without charge, and today he planned to snip 30 or 40 more.

Hoover Won't Run in '32, Blease Predicts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—There will be three presidential tickets in the 1932 election, with the prohibitionists of both major parties organizing a third ticket against the regular Republican and Democratic candidates, Senator Blease (Dem.), of South Carolina, the dry "who takes a drink once in a while," predicted today.

Blease, in his forecast of the next presidential race, named the nominees he believes will represent each of the three parties. They are:

Regular Republican—Former President Calvin Coolidge and Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, as his running-mate.

Regular Democratic — Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, with Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, as his running-mate.

Third Dry ticket — Senator William E. Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, with Senator Morris Sheppard (Dem.), of Texas, as his running-mate.

Blease said he expected President Hoover would not be a candidate for re-election. He conceded the President could force his own renomination by control of the convention machinery but insisted the President would not run. He looked upon Coolidge as the logical nominee if Hoover withdrew.

COUNCIL URGES RHALL HONORS

Suitable recognition of Detective Sergeant John Rhall for his bravery in shooting one bandit who had him "covered" and in engaging in a revolver battle with a second is asked in a resolution unanimously passed yesterday by Council after being introduced by Lobert J. Alderdice.

Mayor Charles H. Kline and Director of Public Safety James M. Clark are asked to take proper recognition of Rhall's feat. He was driving home November 7 when two bandits attacked him on Vernon street, one shoving an automatic revolver against him. This man was shot by Rhall, who was carrying his police gun in his overcoat pocket.

CITY TO STUDY MONORAIL PLAN

George S. Davison, head of the department of city transit, has notified Council that his engineers are investigating the monorail system of rapid transit and will make a complete report.

His statement followed a communication from L. W. Monteverde, head of the department of city planning, which suggested the transit department's facilities to make the study which his own bureau does not have. The report was asked by a resolution unanimously approved by Council after being introduced by Robert Garland.

A PROBLEM IN SIMPLE ARITHMETIC

"MAKING" a fire insurance rate, and "computing" it, are two very different things. The property owner helps to make it by maintaining certain conditions, good or bad, which in part determine what the rate must be.

The trained experts of the inspection bureau for your locality, after surveying those conditions, compute the rate after giving credit for good points in the risk and making charges for the ones that constitute fire hazards.

Structure, occupancy, character of private and public fire protection, exposure from other property, general loss experience: These are some of the things the inspector takes into account when measuring a risk for the purpose of computing the rate.

Surveys and Counsel Available

Instead of attempting to handle fire prevention problems your own way, seek the counsel of the inspection and rating bureau for your locality. Its officials and employes will be glad to help you without charge.

The agent who writes your insurance, or your insurance broker, can tell you just how to reach the inspection organization serving your community.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

companies solicit your interest in this matter. These companies generally prefer risks eligible to a low rate rather than those which must carry higher rates. The stock companies support the inspection and rating organizations and, through the National Board of Fire Underwriters, publish information upon which risk measurements are based.

In Pennsylvania fire insurance rates are computed by the Underwriters' Association of the Middle Department, Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association (Philadelphia only), Philadelphia Suburban Underwriters' Association, and the Fire Underwriters of Allegheny County (Pittsburgh and vicinity) with their extensive staffs of trained engineers.

MONACA FRUIT DEALER KILLED

MONACA, Pa., Nov. 25.—Struck by an automobile while crossing the street, Joseph Zizarel, 69, retired fruit merchant, died of a fractured skull in the hospital at Rochester. The car was driven by Ralph E. Alexander, Monaca, police report.

Injuries sustained when he fell down a flight of steps, caused the death today at his home, of Andrew Schenk, 82.

Cup for Lipton To be Made Of Gold

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Nothing less than gold will do for the cup to be presented to Sir Thomas Lipton, symbolizing the esteem in which Americans hold the British sportsman who has tried in vain for years to win America's cup with his Shamrock yachts.

So much money poured into Mayor Walker's office when an appeal for contributions was broadcast that it was decided to have the cup made of gold, instead of silver as intended. The base will be of silver donated by the state of Utah.

Presentation will be made December 4 in the aldermanic chamber of city hall. The ceremony will be broadcast by the Columbia System.

Easiest Way To Break Up a Cold

Millions Say of This Proved Way

Works Fast—Makes You Feel Like a New Person Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

ALIEN, FORGER GIVEN TERMS

Pane Bijelic, a Serbian, of Rochester, Pa., was sentenced to serve three months in jail by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar, when he pleaded guilty to making false statements to immigration authorities in a petition for a re-entry application. Bijelic, immigration authorities said, declared he entered the country in 1913, but their investigation disclosed he had entered in 1926 with a passport that had been issued to Ilija Gvoic.

Frank Mosser was sentenced to two months in jail for forging a government check for $28.75, on October 31, 1927. The check had been sent to Mrs. Marie Blaine, widow of a war veteran. Mosser disappeared after the offense and was not arrested until a month ago in Homestead by United States secret service operatives.

Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady Brings Yuletide Happiness

Dear Little Girls:

I am glad I started my "Tickletoes" doll distribution so early this year. If I had not, I don't believe I would have been able to take care of all the little girls who want one before Christmas. And I'm glad that I'm making it so easy for children to get my "Tickletoes" because this is a year when many little girls would be without a Christmas dolly unless I had found a way for their parents to get one. There are lots of daddies out of work but that should not stop them from getting one of my adorable "Tickletoes" for their little girl.

I am making it so easy to get "Tickletoes" that there isn't any reason why every little girl in Pittsburgh and vicinity should not have one—that is if, dad and mother will help.

I am still up to my eyes in stacks of letters but I am making an effort to answer every letter that comes to me. Among the little girls who have written to me within the last day or two are: Kathryn Logan, Betty McCaffrey, Jean Painter, Beatrice Schriem, Catherine Kersting, Gladys Fisher, Wilma Stevenson, Joyce Taylor, Theresa Giudi, Sarah McCance, Dorothy Bernat, Freda Baughman, Lois Planck, Dorothy Paulson and Shirley Gooselstein.

Nearly every little girl must surely know about "Tickletoes" by this time. But in case you have not been reading my letters I'll tell you just a little about this adorable dolly. Yes, she's so big and so pretty that you'll be proud of her. When you see how your eyes will open wide and you'll exclaim, "Oh! Oh! Isn't she a darling. I want to hug her."

"Tickletoes" is gorgeously dressed in organdy; has laughing eyes that open and shut, the clasps her hands, sucks her thumbs, plays with her toes and has three different voices. When you pinch her right knee you hear one voice, squeeze the other knee and you hear another voice and lay her on her face and she cries like a baby. Her arms and legs, you know, are made of rubber and you can give her a bath just like a real baby.

Now if you have your heart set on getting a "Tickletoes" for yourself fill in the coupon, send it to me and I'll write and tell you just what you'll have to do to get this lovely dolly for yourself before Christmas. Sincerely, the

Girl Scouts to Plan Winter Recreation

Girl Scout leaders and council members will confer with Miss Jeanne Christy, recently appointed to supervise camping and conduct training courses in Pittsburgh district, next week, it is said. This will be the first season that a definite effort has been made to encourage a year-round out-door program. Hikes, expeditions and group activities are to be planned.

LIBRARY LIMIT EXPLAINED

A protest by the undergraduate newspaper of Duquesne University that fiction and other circulating books could no longer be obtained from the Business District branch of Carnegie Library was answered today by Ralph Munn, director of the Carnegie Libraries of Pittsburgh.

Munn stated that under present conditions it would be impossible to give any other than downtown business men a service, owing to limited space and facilities. He said:

"When the library branch was in the City-County Building, it occupied only a relatively small room, designed to accommodate business men. Students began to use it in ever increasing numbers, so that the limited space and facilities served neither group well.

"Forced to move because the city controller needed more space, the Union Trust Company offered us a much-desired room on condition that we furnish a business men's library reference room. Under the conditions it is impossible to furnish any more than that.

"I don't see any chance of the branch expanding beyond a business man's service."

City Gets Light Bill Of Annexed Areas

Another bill against the city of Pittsburgh as a result of annexing territory appeared in Council yesterday. This was a bill of the Duquesne Light Company against Hays and Overbrook boroughs and Union Township. The light was furnished to streets and municipal buildings.

Goodwill Industries Employes Celebrate

The Goodwill Industries of Pittsburgh will celebrate the Thanksgiving season with a dinner for its employes at 6 p. m. tomorrow, in the Goodwill plant. Twelve turkeys will supply the gathering. Richard Gebhardt, chairman of social and religious committee, will preside.

FOOT STEPPED ON, GIRL DIES

Blood poisoning which developed, the coroner's office reported, after another pupil had accidentally stepped on her right foot, caused the death last night in St. Joseph's Hospital of Emma Schmitt, 10, a sixth grade pupil of St. Michael's Catholic School, Pius street.

The child's mother, Mrs. Charles Schmitt, of 1724 Mary street, at first thought little of the injury, which occurred 10 days ago. The next day the girl complained of severe pains in the foot and a physician was summoned. She was taken to the hospital but the infection could not be checked.

Police Will Use Plane to Chase Criminals

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 25. State police and state highway patrol authorities of the district have accepted the proffer of the use of an airplane at Bradford Field here, in any future hunt for criminals, it was announced.

The first use of the plane was made Sunday in an effort to capture two men, who abandoned the car in which they had crashed into another machine. The automobile abandoned has since been found to have been stolen in Pittsburgh.

TWO FACE AUTO THEFT CHARGE

Accused of the theft of an automobile, James Owens, 23, of First street, Rankin, and Andrew Rudy, 21, of Harriet street, Rankin, were being held today by Swissvale police. They were brought back to Swissvale after the machine in which they were riding upset in the Lincoln highway, near Jennerstown.

Police say the youths stole a car bearing Ohio license plates from 2415 Waverly street, Swissvale, and Pennsylvania plates from the home of Joseph Salki, of North Highland avenue, Rankin, which they used on the automobile.

TROLLEY, TRUCK CRASH, 3 HURT

Three persons were injured and a score of others shaken up when a street car and a truck collided in Freeport road, near Center street, Aspinwall, last night.

Those injured and treated by physicians in the neighborhood were: Miss Kathryn Herzog, 23, of 324 First street, Aspinwall; Miss M. Uptegraff, of Monroe's Hill, Aspinwall, and Mrs. A. Bender, of 327½ Forty-second street. They suffered lacerations when windows in the car were shattered by the impact.

The truck, of the trailer type, was driven, police said, by Paul Repas, of 163 Forty-second street.

An average of 35 to 40 cases a month are being handled in Morals Court alone, according to the report of the Rev. S. C. Michelfelder, superintendent of the Inner Mission.

All cases involve persons connected with the Lutheran denomination. Usually the trouble is handled through the Morals Court worker who seeks to bring the two parties together. Where legal advice necessary, and the persons involved do not have the means to employ an attorney, the Legal Aid Society gives help.

Sloan's Liniment

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Take a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Does Beauty Bring Love And Success?

How important is beauty?

Is it the big go-get-'em stuff for girls?

Every year American women spend many millions on Being Beautiful—give more money for make-up and marcels than they do for books or matinees or any other form of amusement and improvement.

They do it because they honestly think that beauty works magic . . . because they think it will give them love and life and success.

Is it? Will it?

We doubted it. We thought that an ounce of Personality was worth a ton of Prettiness, and we warned the girls against banking too much on peach bloom complexions and trick bobs.

Girl Disagrees

Now comes Gert to tell us we're all wet. For Gerty's strong for Beauty and she thinks a well-powdered nose has it all over a well-stocked brain when it comes to landing 'em. Well—maybe! But we've seen freckled kids in kitchen aprons with a technique that made a Cleopatra look like a piker!

Do you agree with Gert? Or do you think that Beauty, as a go-get-'em recipe, is the bunk?

"Dear Sally:

I've just got to disagree with you this time, and I know that thousands and thousands of other women feel the same way that I do. I mean about beauty being the bunk."

Let's look at it first from the business standpoint . . . and I defy you, or anyone else, to prove I'm wrong.

Value of Beauty

The plain girl may be twice as efficient equally as pleasant, and far more reliable—but she'll never land the job.

After all, men still run most of the businesses, and there's nothing they like so much as a touch of brightness and beauty in their offices . . . and women feel the same way when they're bosses. And most of them have only the time or the interest to see the surface, and none to delve into the minds and hearts of their female workers. And I think that nine times out of ten the pretty girl is really smarter than the other one, because she knows her psychology well enough to have figured out these facts, and put them to work for her.

Second, comes beauty's effect on Romance. Men may find towsle-headed kids well enough . . . to romp with on a picnic or a party, but most men marry the sweet, dainty, well-groomed and well-cosmetized ladies. A towsle-headed wife all too often means a towsle-headed house, where the man is really ashamed to bring his friends . . . and both pail on a man in an amazingly short time, while the woman who is smart enough to keep her make-up fresh usually keeps her home the same way . . . and, moreover, is easier on the eyes while she's doing it.

"Why do you suppose so many women who are opposed to cosmetics write you these wails about being unattractive to men? It's because they are unattractive and therefore they lose out. And they're either too dumb, or too egotistical, to go out and use a little wit to get what they obviously want, and feel bitter over not getting.

Has Helped Her

"In a few thousand years, when men no longer rule the world, women may be free to look as homely as they please—as men seem to be now. But, for the present, men are in the majority and have the jump on us, and the clever woman won't overlook that fact. And you can just bet your boots I'm not overlooking it.

"And last, but not least, this little spiel of mine is not sour grapes, either. I've held the same good job for five years now, and the same good husband for almost four, and I intend to keep on spending money for cosmetics, grooming and clothes, to create the current idea of beauty. And on the side I'm building up a darned good bank account, too. And I figure that beauty has done a lot to help me.

"GERTY."

All right. Let's have an argument. Is Gerty right? Is beauty the biggest card a woman can play?

How much is beauty really worth in the grand old game of life?

How much will it win—or hold—against a heart warm with sympathy and zestful gaiety . . . eyes sparkling with sheer joy of living?

Let's have your vote.

And you're in this, too, Bill, Tom, Oscar.

Who're you for? The beautiful Doll with the Trick Finger Nails—or the kid with the friendly smile?

Household Hints

Fringe on cotton draperies will frequently add a finished touch with little additional expense.

Try moistening salt with a little vinegar, and rubbing the mixture on your stained enamel. The objectionable stains ought to disappear with very little effort.

A child will never crave what he has never tasted. So keep the undesirable foods away from him until he is old enough to have them without endangering his health.

A good flow of gas on the gas stove will produce blue cones with purple edges and should be sharp and distinct. Yellow or white flames are wasteful and only deposit soot on the bottoms of pots and pans.

Fay King Concludes Umbrella Carriers Should Take Exams for Licenses

By FAY KING

The careless careening of umbrella carriers inclines me to think that there should be some sort of an examination of prospective umbrella toters, such as there is for automobile drivers and airplane pilots.

Either the long spinless season or the craze for golf, hockey and polo is to blame. They swing on an umbrella as if it were a game stick instead of a rain screen.

Lucky you are, if, after venturing out on a drippy day, you return home without bent ribs or perforations—in yourself as well as your umbrella.

From sudden jabs, jerks and jumps out of dangers and drenchings during a recent downpour, I am in such a state of discoloration all inspirations for filling this space is deadened.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Over the Telephone

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My wife and I were separated three years ago and divorced. In recent months we have become friendly again. She retained my name, Vincent; I have always called her Patricia. Where she now works and has worked for quite a long time she is well and favorably known. In an occasional telephone call there at the office where she is employed, I ask for Patricia. I do not know any of the people there. Another girl there says I show poor form in asking for Patricia, and that I should call her "Mrs. Vincent," when asking for her on the telephone. This is the circumstance in which I am turning to you as an authority in form and manners, to tell me if I am right or wrong in calling her Patricia?

EDWARD.

I'm so glad that you wrote to me about this, for indeed you would always lay yourself open to criticism if you ask to speak to Patricia. This is very poor form, and I do hope that you will at once do as the girl suggested—say, "May I speak to Mrs. Vincent, please?"

A business telephone is a formal and impersonal affair, and we should use the formal name as we announce the person to whom we wish to speak. I am sure that your wife would object to your using her first name as you ask to speak with her over the telephone.

The First Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband took me to a dance, and we invited another couple to go with us. Was it proper for my husband to ask the other lady for the first dance—which left me to dance the first dance with her husband? J. F.

Yes.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

An excellent cream, used for the purpose of developing the bust, is made by melting together equal weights of cocoa-butter and lanolin. Use the flattened palms very gently, going lightly with the downward movement.

The padded back, the back showing rolls of flesh that hump up over the shoulders, can be slimmed down and leveled by exercises that send the arms about in their sockets. Swinging Indian clubs is a perfect means of correcting this trouble. Swing the arms in circles, first one and then the other. Extend them straight out from the sides and click the fists together over the head. Stand erect; good posture is important.

Wide, stubby finger nails should be permitted to grow fairly long, then they must be filed to a pointed oval. Square nails must be oval and not pointed. The proper shaping of the finger nails make the fingers look long and tapering. Only a sharp, flexible file will make a good job of grooming. Poor files grind and tear and put the teeth on edge.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, November 26

An active and generally progressive day is forecast from the ruling planetary configurations. Yet there may be difficult situations to handle and also an unfortunate incitement to rash, impulsive measures, which may be the means of precipitating loss, strife and complications. With this tempestuous spirit well under control, there are excellent prospects of new openings and desirable contracts.

Those whose birthday it is, are on the eve of a year of excellent opportunity, with good openings and new contracts, all of which should be wisely and calmly grasped.

A child born on this day should be clever, ingenious and adventurous, as well as practical and hardworking.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Drink Water; and Plenty of It!

Troubles of the gall bladder are all too common today. You can scarcely find a day when there is not the announcement of an operation for gall stone in the case of some prominent person. Each of us is likely to receive news of some friend who is suffering from a disorder of the gall bladder.

DR. COPELAND

The gall bladder is a pear - shaped body, and is about the size of a pear. It is closely associated with the liver. The narrow end tapers off into a tube or duct, which is called the "cystic duct." The drainage tube of the liver and the cystic duct join to form another and larger passageway. This is called the "bile duct" or the common duct, and it opens into the intestinal tract.

The bile that fluid held in the gall bladder is an ideal place for the growth of germs. Pus germs, those of pneumonia, of dysentery, or of typhoid—any of them may be found in diseased gall bladders.

The bile is composed of several ingredients one of which is called "cholesterin." It appears like fine granulated sugar—white, glistening crystals which are taken from the blood.

When the liver and gall bladder are normal everything is fine. But should the gall bladder be irritated or disturbed there is sure to be more than the required amount of blood there. If there is long-continued congestion inflammation follows. This means that still more blood rushes to this area. More blood is crowded into the vessels of the gall bladder. All the time cholesterin is being taken from the blood. The more blood there is the more cholesterin is found.

Then a germ or a group of germs offers a splendid nucleus for the accumulation of cholesterin. The excessive deposit of this substance clusters about any roughness in the gall bladder so that layer after layer of these cholesterin crystals gather until the mass is like a grain of sand. After a while it grows large, until a small stone forms. There may be just one, or there may be others if the conditions are just right. Of course when a stone begins to leave the gall bladder then there is great pain.

Veritzen's Dinner Arrangements Prove Elaborate

Philip Veritzen gave us no time for mental worry over his reasons for bringing Colin Cameron, the young "talkie" star, to the dinner which our little group at the hotel had thought was planned for us alone. With his eyes still on Mary, he interrupted young Mr. Cameron's fatuous reply to her mendacious assertion that she had been "Splinters of Fate," his latest picture, six times.

"Suppose you tell her the rest of that at dinner, Cameron," he said. "I told them we would be there at the stroke of 7, and we shall have to hurry to make it, even though Otto can get through traffic unbelievably."

"I'd advise you to hurry, people," Lillian drawled. "You probably have not had my experience of seeing our friend trying to eat a dinner which had been off the fire 45 seconds or so before his arrival. Behold the epicure par excellence. Old Petronius was a piker compared to our Phil."

She threw a mocking but companionable smile at him over her shoulder as she went to the closet for her wraps. His answering smile was prompt, but a bit awry, and I wondered curiously if Mary's prompt obedience to his suggestion of haste had anything to do with his displeasure. For at his first words of warning she had turned the palm of her hand outward and toward Cameron with a graceful little gesture of farewell and had joined me in walking toward the door whence we could go toward our own apartment and put on our wraps. I knew Philip Veritzen's arrogance and domineering little ways—knew, as did Mary, that ordinarily he would have been gratified at such prompt acquiescence in his request, and violently angered at any disregard of his dictum. But I had the queer little feeling that upon this particular occasion the great producer would have been better pleased if Mary had flouted his request and remained as absorbed in young Mr. Cameron as she had appeared to be but a moment before.

"What do you suppose Monsieur Reynard le Fox is up to?" Mary demanded as soon as we had closed the door of our own apartment.

"I haven't the slightest idea, Mary," I told her truthfully, as I put on my hat, and added mendaciously, "Probably he isn't 'up to' anything. It is a most natural thing for him to add a man to a dinner party which needs one for balance."

"That's all very true," she rejoined, turning from the mirror where she had been adjusting her own hat with the tense concentration of a young girl. "But I have a feeling in my bones that he didn't trot out this talkie hound just to fill in at a dinner."

We were out in the hall, finding the rest of our party ready to depart.

"You just saved our bacon," Mr. Underwood assured us as we trailed down the hall to the elevators. But Philip Veritzen's contracted eyebrows did not entirely smooth out until Otto drew up the big limousine to the door of a converted old mansion in the thirties from whose big bay window overlooking the street multi-colored lights shone through soft rich hangings, and in front of whose door stood a gigantic doorman in Oriental costume.

"Aha!" Mr. Underwood said. "We dine at the 'Sign of the Scimitar.' Pretty nifty feeding they have here, if I remember it."

"Yes, they do serve you very well here," our host admitted, and then we were inside the door, where a black-eyed houri, with dusky hair shrouded beneath the headdress of a loose garment which enveloped her from head to foot, took our wraps.

"Probably Lena Goldberg from Grand street working for her eats," Mr. Underwood murmured as Mr. Veritzen was greeted by the manager of the restaurant. "But it keeps up the illusion."

"Harry!" his wife warned softly, shaking her head at him, while Mary choked back a giggle.

"Kamerad!" Mr. Underwood whispered, and then Mr. Veritzen turned back to me with a charming bow, and the rest followed us to the rear of the restaurant, where the smaller of the two dining rooms had been cleared out save for a single table in the center of the room and laid for six and bearing a low centerpiece of exquisite lavender and white orchids against the delicate green of maidenhair fern.

"You have never told me your favorite flower," Mr. Veritzen murmured to me as we approached the table, "but these have always seemed to me to belong to you."

I stirred uncomfortably. This was the personal note with a vengeance, the thing against which I was always on guard with Philip Veritzen. How could I best turn his sounding of it into a commonplace?

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Sweet and Low-Down.

Wedding-rings are very much wider, this season—wider and fewer. In fact, they are becoming so rare, that a woman wants one big enough to SHOW.

A woman has reached the age of discretion, when she begins to believe the worst that her looking-glass tells her, and gives up her lipstick; a man, when he believes the worst that his doctor tells him, and gives up whoopee parties.

Some husbands are almost as hard to bear with, when they are trying to be "good and noble" as when they are peevish and natural.

At 16, every girl believes secretly that she was "just made for love." Later, she discovers, to her chagrin, that she was just made for stenography, manicuring—or darning socks and washing dishes.

The average man's respect for woman's intelligence is manifested in the fact that, even in this enlightened day, women's hats are priced $4.98; whereas, a $5 hat in a man's shop costs exactly $5—and no fooling!

Drinks used to be diluted with vermouth or mineral water; and love, with romance and sentiment, in the good old days. But now we take them both "straight," and wonder why they leave us with such a headache.

* * *

An ideal wife, according to a man's notion, is a comforting, understanding woman, to whom he can turn for solace or protection, when "the other woman"

an" is beginning to "get on his nerves."

TECH TO INVITE COAL SESSIONS

Carnegie Institute of Technology will be host to authorities on bituminous coal at a third international conference in November, 1931, according to announcement by Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the institute. Invitations are to be extended to scientists in all countries, with prominent men in America helping Dr. Baker in organizing the meeting.

The meeting will pay particular attention to the economics of new methods and processes now being evolved, Dr. Baker says. The discussion will be confined to coal after it has been mined. Other meetings were held in 1926 and 1928.

HELPED HER DIGESTION MORE THAN ANYTHING ELSE

"Suffered over thirty years with acid indigestion. ACIDINE has helped me more than anything I have ever taken," says Mrs. Emma Green, of Detroit, Michigan.

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription, ACIDINE succeeds where other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japsac, which, in laboratory tests, digested six times its own weight of certain heavy, starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, another irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, headburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, gassy headaches and all unpleasantness trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money. Get it from your druggist today.

"When I Visited—I Found"

Says

ROBERT H. DAVIS

("Bob" Davis)

Noted Newspaper Correspondent

"Winning the public's favor is no longer a matter of shouting from the housetops—today you must offer them something concrete. When I visited Reidsville and went through the LUCKY STRIKE plant, I found one explanation for the growth of LUCKY STRIKE. Your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the tobaccos is a splendid example of achievement. It is the new order of the day."

Robert H. Davis

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company invited Mr. Robert H. Davis to personally witness and to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process and report his findings. The statement of Mr. Davis appears on this page.

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

REVUE, MUSICAL AND STRAIGHT COMEDY AS SEEN FROM CRITICS' SEATS

By GEORGE SEIBEL

WHEN FRED STONE bounced out upon the Nixon stage last night with two hoofprints upon the tail of his coat, it needed no bulletin or proclamation to assure the audience that he was as good as ever. When he brings out his two new dancing partners near the close of the show—a pair of crutches—the audience would think a pack of firecrackers was going off, if firecrackers could be that lively.

George Seibel

No, Fred is none the worse for his experiments in aviation, and the musical show called "Ripples" is one of those happy hodge-podges of clowning, dancing, catchy tunes, pretty girls in dazzling costumes, and scenery from fairyland that one always expects in a Fred Stone show.

But the best of every Fred Stone show is Fred himself, though he would probably say that Dorothy was the best of the show, and Dorothy would probably say that Paula was the best of it.

Paula, you know, is the little sister of Dorothy, though she is a couple of inches taller, and Dorothy is no tiny Dot. Paula seems to be perfectly at home on the stage; she sings and dances and jests with all the glee and grace of the family.

Another precious Stone from the same quarry!

The three of them make "Ripples" capital entertainment. Like most musical shows, it hasn't much of a plot, but such as there is revolves around a great-grandson of old Rip Van Winkle. That's Fred Stone.

DWARFS TURN BOOTLEGGERS

Those little men who put the original Rip to sleep for 20 years have now become bootleggers to keep up with the times.

Rip is in trouble all the time, like his ancestor, and his daughter Ripples is in love with the son of the rich woman who owns the land that should belong to Rip.

Around this slender plot are twined the gyrations of the chorus, of 12 Tiller Girls who are as fresh as daisies, of a dancing bear whose joyous name is Lollipop, of the seven midgets who look as if they lived in Sleepy Hollow, and of Rip's hunting exploits.

You must hear Rip himself tell about them and see his devices for duck hunting, for rabbit hunting, for deer hunting—and find out what became of his camouflaged horse and why there are no tigers in Arizona.

And you must hear his speech in which he tells about his aviation experience during which he discovered the law of gravitation —"the only law that's still in force."

For all that he thinks aviation is still better sport than "Shrimp Golf."

He is the same old Fred Stone—bubbling over with merry quips and quaint antics.

THOSE TILLER GIRLS

Aside from the Stone family, those Tiller Girls are the hit of "Ripples." They have a Sunrise Dance and an Autumn Ballet that are alive with rhythm and color. The drifting red leaves make a specially beautiful effect.

There are also some songs that have a haunting lilt—especially "You Can Never Tell About Love" and "I'm a Little Bit Fonder of You."

And there are some very good people in the cast, among them the statuesque and stately Hilda Spong, Andrew Tombes, Billy Taylor, Cynthia Foley and Peggy Bancroft.

With many changes of scene and costume, with several score of girls in chorus and ballet, with tricks and surprises following one another, it all works as smoothly and speedily as a Stone show always does.

Yes, it is entertaining and clean —and the best thing about it is the return of Fred Stone, unchipped by his fall from the clouds, and the debut of Paula Stone, Dorothy's big little sister.

Mayer (Arthur Hopkins) Portner's next tome will be tagged: "Not To The Swift."

The old Barnum & Bailey circus quarters at Bridgeport are being torn down . . . When "Once In A Lifetime" opened Marc Connolly, his former partner, sent George Kaufman a wreath inscribed: "In Memory of Edwin Booth!" . . . The Richard Harrises (Madge Smylie) were melted a fortnight ago . . . Squelch overheard in a night club after a collegiate ogled another lad's gal: "Hey, dope! You look like you have very good health. Why don't you take care of it?" . . . First Nights in N. Y. are now chiefly made up of critical actors and actresses who are out of jobs . . . The reputation of a late author will be blemished soon when his ghost writer takes the matter to a judge . . . Uniontown, Pa., has an avenue named Winchell . . . Well, it's about time.

'SPEED AND SPARKLE' OFFERING IN ACADEMY

Raynor appears as an all-around funster. Miss Ford dances and sings "blues." Jerri McCauley, billed as "a special added attraction," offers songs and patter. Ann Meyers, with songs and dances, and Garrigan and DeMuth, dancing specialists, also are prominent. Other principals include Billy Tanner, James K. Francis, Florence Neild, Charlotte LeBurr and Eddie Aiken. There will be a special midnight show Thanksgiving eve.

'Artists and Models' Put Paris and Riviera On Stage of Alvin

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Artists and Models," Shubert revue in the Alvin, is the "Paris-Riviera edition of 1930," according to the program. It is a good show of its type. It has lots of comedy, opulence in costumes, good lookers in such parts of the production as are supposed to be spectacular, some good singing, speed in ensemble dancing and general all-around perfection for entertainment of this character.

Much of the comedy is raw rather than rare, but plentiful laughter on the part of a large first audience last night indicated a general agreement that one expects to be amused rather than edified by a latter-day revue. Pause for one more reflection about the fun moments and then pass on to the details. You'll never miss Paris and the Riviera if you travel in a smoking car.

SHE'S NO PARISIAN

There's nothing Parisian or Riverian about Aileen Stanley, however. Miss Stanley is one of the featured principals. She sings a half dozen ditties that are little melody stories and does it with ease that is virtually conversational, as well as being musical. Phil Baker and his aid in an upper box, who knows all the answers and has been every place, provide riotous moments. Phil doesn't worry about the stock market any more because it has put him on his feet again—they've taken his car. And so on for many merry minutes.

Shaw and Lee, glummest and dumbest-looking of all comics, also provide many laughs, some of them clean. They do it more effectively in front of a drop curtain than in a skit, "Solarium," in which they get into a women's massage parlor. More comedy is provided in a series of "black-outs" introduced with a song, "Believe It or Not," sung by Don Lanning and Fodi Brown.

DANCING SPECIALISTS

Dancing features include specialties by Rosemary Deering, toe dancer; Pierce and Harris, clever ballroom dancers, who mildly burlesque adagio movements while doing them skillfully, and Gertrude Sheffield, who does a sinuous solo in "Turk's Dream," most novel and elaborate feature of the bill, introduced vocally by Paul Cadieux, quite properly the featured male singer of the production. Peggy O'Neil also pleases with her singing and dancing.

The dancing ensemble is easy to look at and can dance. The showgirl division is sufficiently pulchritudinous. There is plenty of diversity of scene and everything to make a gorgeous, amusing show. What more could one ask?

PITT LEADING WOMAN DOESN'T GET THE BACHELOR HERO

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Triumphant Bachelor," new George Sharp production in the Pitt, upsets the applecart of stock tradition. Leading Woman Pauline MacLean does not get Leading Man Paul McGrath at the finale. Instead, he marches to the exit with the lesser-known, but attractive Stephanie Diamond.

The play is bright and breezy-enough comedy. Its story is about a bachelor and three of his married friends. The bachelor lets a little girl's tears lead him into a marriage engagement. So naturally the conversation turns to women. After a second or third drink the bachelor insists all women are jealous. His friends insist they're not—at least, not their wives. So a wager is made and a "plot" is cooked up to provide the proof. After which the play travels through amusing situations.

A WEEPING WILLOW

Miss MacLean gives an appropriate portrayal. She is the weeping willow of the occasion. She's the little girl who always blubbers until she gets her own way. But her tears can't compete with a secretary's charms and so she's left waiting on the porch.

Paul McGrath is the bachelor. And he's a triumphant bachelor still, at the last curtain. He goes away with a lady, but his parting line is "don't speak of marriage."

THE POINTING FINGER

Robert Fiske, Hugh Banks and John Winthrop portray the three husbands. Mr. Fiske, always the intelligent actor, makes his husband an entertaining one, even though he allows his wife to get a little of the best of him. Mabel Kroman portrays his wife. And she tells him a thing or two. She points a wicked finger.

The other wives are played by Susan Colby and Helena Gregg.

Alice Ann Baker is in the cast. She does an aristocratic sort of mother role, having the sobbing Pauline for a daughter.

The production was directed by Edwin Vail. It has been given a pleasant scenic setting, with flowers by so and so; rugs from so and so; art pieces from so and so and radio from so and so.

Home for Vacation, Student Falls Dead

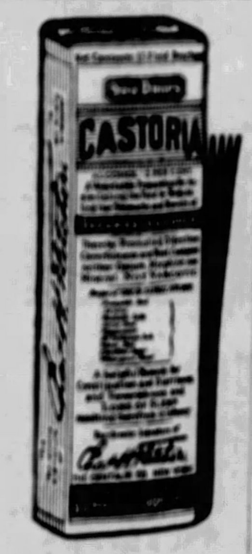
SISTERSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 25.—Billy Lehu, 20, college boy home for the Thanksgiving holidays, fell dead of heart trouble as he was leaving the Wetzel County Hospital where he had visited a sick friend.

277 Doe Licenses Issued Landowners

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 25.—A total of 277 free doe hunting licenses for landowners for use on their own property in Cook, Ligonier, Fairfield and St. Clair Townships have been issued by Game Protector Ray McKissock.

Game wardens report large numbers of rabbits, squirrel, ringnecked pheasants and partridge killed during the past month in Westmoreland County.

Quick COMFORT for fretful upset children



ALL children are subject to little upsets. They come at unexpected times. They seem twice as serious in the dead of night. But there's one form of comfort on which a mother can always rely; good old Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation can't harm the tiniest infant. Yet mild as it is, it soothes a restless, fretful baby like nothing else. Its quick relief soon sees the youngster comfortable once more, back to sleep. Even an attack of colic, or diarrhea, yields to the soothing influence of Castoria.

Keep Castoria in mind, and keep a bottle in the house—always. Give it to any child whose tongue is coated, or whose breath is bad. Continue with Castoria until the child is grown!

For sale by all druggists. Be sure to get the genuine product with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on wrapper, and this familiar name-plate:

CASTORIA

Surety Plan Seeks Reduction in City Taxes

FINAL CANVASS IN WELFARE DRIVE

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

This and That:

If you are one of the hopeful humans who believe that two-a-day vaudeville some day will return, the case of Ed Lowry should convince you otherwise. Seven, eight, nine, 10 years ago Lowry was a hard-working single act in the two-a-day, a comedian and a jack-of-all trades. He was not a headliner, but he had a good act. Probably his salary then was $400 a week. Today, as a master of ceremonies, he does comparatively little and earns twice or three times as much. It's true he works twice as many shows today, but he doesn't have to work nearly so hard.

William Pfarr

We live and learn, we always say. Six months ago we went to bat with a short, officious announcement that Charles Francis Coe, who writes books about common and more common people, knew his stuff. We were especially taken in by Coe's writing on gangsters. Now Coe has written a novel about types of which we know at least a little—prize fighters, ingenues—and now we've changed our mind about him.

This is the initiation season at Pitt, Tech and Duquesne, so don't be mystified if a young freshman approaches you in the dark and asks you where you were on the night of June 12, 1903. Their fellow frat-members insist on such stunts as part of the initiation. Our one (and we don't want any more) experience with such a candidate occurred a year ago. When we were through answering his written questions he handed us a cigar.

The impotency of modern mystery writers was never more evident than it is this very minute. The reason is Sherlock Holmes. All of Conan Doyle's "Holmes" stories have just been issued in two volumes and by contrast with him, modern mystifiers are pathetic. Read Doyle and shiver.

When Chic Sale, the author-actor, was in town recently, he complained to a friend that the customers were more interested in his writings than his acting. This irked him because he has been on the stage 20 years and in the writing racket only a year. Neither in writing nor acting does Sale any longer use his outstanding line: "He visited his mother-in-law anyhow."

A friend who visits those low speakeasy places reports that even the big electrical phonographs have been organized into a racket. If you want to open a speakeasy you must install a certain kind of phonograph, in which the customers may push their nickels. It is whispered in the best of circles that these phonographs are manufactured by a company which also turns out the slot machines.

We suspected, when we wrote that Miss Lois Wilson, of the Philadelphia Company, was a polite gum-chewer, that we were wrong, and we were. Miss Wilson doesn't chew gum. (We told how she had tossed a stick of used gum out a window of the Congress of Women's Clubs quarters, a toss which led to the discovery of a possum on the fire escape.) And we have learned, from the best source in the world, how Miss Wilson came into possession of the gum. "It," she explained, "just attached itself very affectionately to the heel of my slipper."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 25.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Everybody is saying that the trouble with the country is that people are saving instead of spending. Well, if that's a vice, then I am Einstein. Since when did saving become a national calamity? Well, I know it's terrible for a non-authority like me to tell you to go contrary to expert advice, but I am telling you if you got a dollar soak it away, put it in a savings bank, bury it. Do anything but spend it. Spending when we didn't have it put us where we are today. Saving when we have got it will get us back to where we was before we went cuckoo.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

FREES LARGE SUM FROM BANKS

Treasurer Schooley Backs Project for Release of $500,000 Municipal Fund

A new ruling designed primarily to safeguard the city's funds may permit a reduction in taxes next year.

The new law, which is being considered by Council at the request of City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, would require all banks receiving city deposits to guarantee the funds by surety bonds or other securities.

RELEASE HALF MILLION

If approved, the ordinance automatically will release a half million dollars being kept by the city as a guarantee against loss.

This $500,000 comes out of the general tax fund. At present it is the only protection the city has against loss as far as fund deposits are concerned. The total of these deposits range from $10,000,000 to $40,000,000.

The county, state and the Board of Public Education require banks receiving deposits to give securities, the city alone making the deposits without such protection.

The ordinance would require each bank to turn over to the city an amount equal to the deposit in United States, Pittsburgh or Allegheny County bonds or a surety company bond. It was drawn by City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt after a conference Treasurer Schooley held with Mayor Charles H. Kline, President of Council John S. Herron and W. Y. English, chairman of the councilmanic Finance Committee.

FUND NOT CONSIDERED

The $500,000 fund which is laying idle waiting for a loss can be returned to the general fund when the ordinance is passed. It amounts to approximately five-eighths of a mill in taxation and has not been considered in the figures used by the Mayor, Treasurer and members of Council when they issued statements saying the taxes are not to be raised.

Pending a complete check-up of the funds available, no definite predictions of the millage are being made. The budget, according to the Mayor, is scheduled to reach Council next week, and that body plans immediate work. The half-million found as a result of the effort to provide an adequate safeguard for the city's deposits undoubtedly will come as a lifesaver to the budget-makers.

In the past the theory has been advanced that the city, by putting up its own guarantee fund, even the present inadequate one, gains interest from the banks. An investigation made by officials revealed that both the school board and the county, both requiring a deposit of securities, get higher interest rates than the city.

FUND SEEKS $359,701 LAST DAY

Workers to Give Reports on Totals at Dinner Tonight; Two Divisions Win Honors

With $359,701 yet to be raised to meet the goal of $1,520,248, workers in the annual Welfare Fund drive today began their last day of canvassing. Final reports will be made at a dinner of workers in the William Penn Hotel at 6:15 p. m.

Officials of the fund today requested merchants and building superintendents having Welfare flags on sidewalk poles to take them down. Boys from the Boys' Club, of Pittsburgh, affiliated with the fund, will collect them today and tomorrow.

Joseph Dilworth, general campaign chairman, presided at the last noon meeting yesterday, when it was reported $139,269 had been collected or pledged since the Saturday meeting. It brought the fund to date to $1,160,547. Outstanding in the day's report were the County Neighborhood Division, which turned in $20,000, and the Special Division, which reported $37,151.

CHEAPER TAXI RATE PLEDGED

A zone taxicab system at about half existing fares will be operated here by the Bell Cab Company, Inc., if permission is granted by the Public Service Commission, according to Congressman Harry A. Estep, counsel for the company.

The incorporators are H. G. Taylor and John A. Korman, of Washington, and James T. Philpot, of this city. The former two are owners of the Sun Taxicab Company of Washington and also operate companies in Richmond and Baltimore.

Estep sent a letter to Council yesterday asking that the city not protest against additional cabs. This, he pointed out, was one of the reasons for the recent refusal of the Public Service Commission to grant certificates of public convenience to the Peoples Royal Blue and the Hiland taxicab companies.

Under the proposed plan four persons would be transported in the first fare zone, five miles in diameter, for 35 cents. The Yellow Cab Company has filed a protest against the new company, Estep said. A hearing has been set for December 3.

W. VA. CAR HITS, KILLS, WALKER

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 25.—Running into the side of an automobile in the Pittsburgh road near the Donaldson crossroads, McKinley Slider, 35, of Mollenauer Mine, near Castle Shannon, was killed last night. The man is believed to have been blinded by snow.

James Cummings, 47, of Elm Grove, W. Va., whose car hit Slider, told highway patrolmen he saw a man run out from the side of the road with his hand raised. Cummings said he believed the man was a robber and sped past. He told highway patrolmen, they say, that he knew his car struck the man, but did not believe he had injured him seriously.

Cummings came directly to the headquarters of the highway patrol and, after reporting the accident, took a highway patrolman to the scene of the accident, where Slider was found dead.

Indoor Miniature Golf Meet Planned

The place of indoor golf as an indoor sport, its interest to the public, and a proposed tournament will be discussed at a meeting of the Miniature Golf Course Association in the William Penn Hotel next Sunday. It will be the first meeting at which new officers, elected last Sunday, will officiate. They are: President, F. E. Donaldson; vice president, Edward B. Laughlin; secretary, M. Freeland, and treasurer, W. J. Veale. Officers say there are about 70 course owners in Allegheny County eligible for membership.

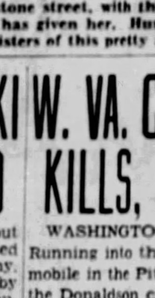
McKinley Players Help Meet Mortgage

"He's My Pal," a comedy by Lillian Mortimer, will be produced by the McKinley Players tomorrow night in the Beltzhoover Leiderkranz Hall. The production is being staged in an effort to meet a mortgage payment to the McKinley Park Presbyterian Church. Ralph N. Foster is directing.

Dorothy Adlow's Lecture Closes Carnegie Series

By PENELOPE REDD.

Presenting the prize portrait of Mme. Piscasso as the concluding illustration of "Trends in Living Art," at Carnegie Lecture Hall last night, Miss Dorothy Adlow remarked:



Penelope Redd

"Mme. Picasso will enjoy the rest after tonight."

Perhaps there were those eager aspirants after bigger and better esthetic knowledge in the audience who agreed.

Miss Adlow was the first woman to lecture on the Carnegie International. Will be the last was the speculation of some of her listeners.

In a discursive lecture obviously compiled from wide reading and supplemented by a limited acquaintance with modern painters, a great mass of unrelated statements occupied the greater part of two hours.

Lantern slides varying from the reindeer of the caveman to El Greco, interspersed with examples of paintings by men introduced by virtue of their New York successes, along with slides of paintings available and later shown from the current international, provided an enhancing and mysterious background for a charming figure in silhouette with a pleasant Boston accent.

One of the paintings, "Holiday," by Colin Gill, used in a somewhat confused statement concerning our modern lack of mythology, religion, and royalty was ascribed to Eric Gill, who is quite a different person—famous as a sculptor and wood engraver.

And so endeth the lectures on the twenty-ninth annual international exhibition like a Roman candle come back to earth.

SHOT IN GANG CLASH

GIRLS GRILLED IN GANG DEATH

Seeking a deeper motive for the slaying of one man and the wounding of another, city detectives continued today to question two young women over whom two rival gangs of young men are said to have engaged in a gun battle in Wabash avenue, West End, Sunday night. The only motive so far is that the men quarreled over the two women.

The young women being questioned are Miss Betty Sanda, 21, of 216 Sloan street, and Miss Irene Sharkey, 17, rear of 147 Wabash avenue. From them detectives hope to get a coherent story of the fight during which Nick Borosky, 27, alias Berky, of Ambridge, was slain and his companion, William Higginson, of Ambridge, wounded.

Detectives are holding the girls at the Central Police Station along with seven men. Higginson, also under arrest, is in the Sewickley Valley Hospital with a bullet wound in his shoulder.

Sleuths say that Joseph Benedetta, 24, of 416 Sloan street, told them he and three other men with the Sanda girl went to the Sharkey girl's home. As Miss Sanda went into the Sharkey home, another automobile stopped in front of the house. Boroskey and Higginson, detectives say Benedetta told them, stepped out and came toward the first car. An argument arose and the shooting followed.

Kaufmann Holds Listening Best Way to Aid Boys

Sympathetic listening rather than advice to delinquent boys was praised as a means of correcting the faults of wayward youths by Edgar J. Kaufmann, last night in an address at the annual smoker of the Jewish Big Brother Club, held in the Y. M. and W. H. A. Building, Bellefield avenue. Kaufmann praised the effectiveness of the Viennese methods of guiding their youth by simple and sympathetic audiences for their problems.

The speaker indicated the adoption of the social-democratic movement in Vienna had been responsible for great strides in the development of the intellect, health and contentment of the people in recent years.

Kaufmann said:

"The secret of the success of the Big Brother movement in Vienna is not in advice for delinquent boys, but rather in sympathetic listening, which encourages the boys to talk, and through talking untwist their own mental kinks."

Council received formal resolutions of objection from the Homewood-Brushton Board of Trade, F. H. Jacob, secretary; the Lincoln District Board of Trade, B. H. Edmonston, secretary, and the Overbrook Board of Trade, Richard Owen, president.

PA PITT NAMED 172 YEARS AGO

Pa Pitt today quietly observed the one hundred seventy-second anniversary of his christening.

At the suggestion of George Washington, the site of Fort Duquesne was named Pittsburgh on November 25, 1758, when Gen. John Forbes seized it from French and Indians. The latter fired the fort and fled upon the approach of Gen. Forbes with 10,000 British and colonial troops. At dusk that night, Col. Armstrong planted the flag of Great Britain on the smoldering ruins and the site was named in honor of William Pitt.

Pittsburgh subsequently was incorporated as a borough on April 22, 1794, and reincorporated as a city in 1816.

THUGS STAGE 2 HOLDUPS AT GARAGES

Lawyer Loses $150, Cafe Proprietor $600 and Auto; Market St. Store Looted

Two armed highwaymen were sought today for the holdup of three motorists as they were entering or putting their automobiles away in garages early today. Attorney Benjamin H. Giffen, of 5519 Black street, one of the victims, was robbed of his wallet containing $150, a check for $10 and valuable papers by two armed youths who held him up at the entrance of his garage in the rear of his home, shortly after midnight.

A similar robbery was reported by C. A. Shriner, of 52 Watsonia boulevard, North Side.

Two men are sought for robbing Patrick Brigella, of 1528 Beechwood boulevard, as he was entering his automobile after leaving his restaurant at 30 Stevenson street, early today. They obtained $300 in cash, two diamond rings valued at $300 and drove off in his machine.

The lone holdup man who has been preying on downtown business establishments for the last few months last night struck again, holding up the Penn Hosiery Store at 434 Market street. Miss Georgie Ficht, the clerk, was alone in the store when the man entered. The robber took $26 from the cash register and fled.

Jewelry valued at $900 was stolen yesterday from the apartments of three nurses on duty at the Presbyterian Hospital. They reside in the Burry Apartments, 118 West Ohio street. The jewelry was the property of Miss Viola Brown, Miss Nellie Thompson and Miss Pearl Weaver.

DRY LAW FACTS AIM OF DRIVE

A survey of conditions since the enactment of national prohibition will be the first step in a nation-wide campaign to bring out facts and present them to the public, Joseph W. Marsh, president of the Exchange National Bank, announced. Mr. Marsh was recently named a member of the national advistory committee of the Anti-Saloon League. The work in Pittsburgh will be carried on by a group of prominent citizens.

Mr. Marsh said:

"Before prohibition, we often found in our plants that the pay envelope did not reach home where it was needed. The streets near our factories were lined with saloons and many of our workers dropped into those places after payday. We often had the experience of the wife calling the office and asking that she might collect the pay for the husband. All that is a thing of the past now."

Mr. Marsh also claims that the contention that the prisons are overcrowded because of the Eighteenth Amendment is incorrect, as the proportion of prisoners in jail for violation of the prohibition laws is small.

MIXED TRADES DENIED PERMIT

Samuel Edelstein, of Niagara street, is nothing if not versatile, if his application to the Zoning Board of Adjustment for a manufacturing permit, is a criterion from which to judge. His application for a permit reads:

"Occupy building for rendering fat, ice manufacturing and lettering monuments and stones."

The zoning board refused the permit, saying that Edelstein had been refused before and had been arrested for doing monument work without permission.

Interviewed, Mr. Edelstein said today that his lawyer was responsible for the scrambling of such widely diverse industries. He said he once did render fat and make ice, but that now he wished to concentrate on grave stones. Said Edelstein:

"My lawyer got mixed. Now I'll have to wait awhile to ask again for a permit to manufacture monuments."

Tech Players to Give Ad Men Exhibition

RAID CASES GO TO GRAND JURY

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today announced that the charges brought against proprietors of alleged gambling houses and speakeasies in Homestead as a result of raids last week will be submitted to the grand jury next month. Defendants in the cases were given preliminary hearings yesterday before Alderman George Anderson.

The alleged gamblers and others, on advice of their attorneys, waived hearings after county detectives had described the raids. Joseph Frank, Linn Markowitz and Leo Swartz, alleged proprietors of the Club Mirador, waived hearing on charges of maintaining a gambling house and violating the Snyder act.

Ray Frank Maloney waived hearing on similar charges, and Lee Baird and Snyder Alford, accused of keeping gambling houses, also waived hearings. Others who waived hearings were Samuel Feldman, Edward and Samuel Lefsky, and Hazel Hunt, charged with violation of the liquor laws.

POSTAL THIEF SENTENCED

Theodore Roosevelt Clark, Negro, named in honor of the former President because their birthdays occurred on the same date, was sentenced to 18 months in the Atlanta Penitentiary by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar, when Clark pleaded guilty to breaking into the McKeesport postoffice and stealing a sweater and a woman's mackintosh from parcel-post packages.

A coincidence was the fact that the offense was committed on October 27, the birthday of both the defendant and the former President. Clark was arrested several days later. He left his vest behind, which proved a clue. In the pocket of the vest was a list containing "clearing house numbers," and he was located by postoffice inspectors finding the seller of the "numbers."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Black in All Fabrics Choice of Younger Set for Theater

Throngs of gay-hearted, smartly gowned folks sallied forth last night in the early winter breezes to see "Artists and Models" at the Alvin, and "Ripples," with the Stone family, at the N[illegible]. And both houses were crowded.

At the [illegible] on the rich smartness of the society folks in the audience reflected the brilliance of costume in the play.

During the one intermission when the younger set was discussing the amusing spectacle of the first act, I noticed the smartness of the more and more prevalent black. Nancy Allderdice looked Grecian in a severely simple gown of black velvet, molded to the figure, and having as the only ornament a girdle of rhinestones.

Another who chose to follow vogue's fancy for black was Mrs. Reed Brown, who chose black crepe with rhinestones for accent. Mrs. Harvey Childs, III, wore black, too.

Sparkling Jewels

and Mrs. George H. Love chose a deep mulberry velvet, molded to the figure, and fashioned with sable-banded short sleeves. Mrs. William Whitcomb wore black lace.

Talking with a group of friends was Mrs. W. Edgar Reed, who wore black crepe and a black velvet wrap. Frances Forsyth chose black, too, wearing a black velvet wrap, luxuriously furred in white fox, over a black velvet gown. A smart cape of black velvet banded with white fox was chosen by Mrs. William A. Duckham, and a gown of black velvet with a tiered skirt.

"Ripples," appearing at the Nixon this week starring Fred Stone and his two daughters, drew an enthusiastic audience last night. Among the spectators I saw many prominent members of the smart set. Louise Evans was among the late arrivals, wearing a gown of black velvet, with the skirt formed of four tiers, and with it she wore a wrap of black velvet with smart touches of white galvak. Virginia Goldsbury chose betel nut red crepe with a wrap of apple green velvet and white fox.

Smart Set Prominent

Marjorie Gethoefer was there, too, wearing black crepe with a black velvet wrap furred with white fox. Genevieve Bell looked charming in orchid chiffon and a black velvet and ermine wrap. Mrs. Lewis A. Park, I noticed, wearing emerald green crepe tying at the waist, with a novel square decolletage.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. May, Jr., were among the folks smoking in the foyer during the intermission. Mrs. May chose a lovely gown of honey-beige lace and tulle, with the skirt falling in several tiers, with which she wore a coat of ermine. With her was her mother, Mrs. James Edward Lewis, who wore black crepe and a coat of mink.

Mrs. Dextra Baldwin Winter of California, who is the house guest of Mrs. Harold B. Hershman, and whom I saw chatting with some friends, was wearing a gown of gold figured lame and an ermine jacket.

-:- CLUB NOTES -:-

Woman's status in Soviet Russia was described yesterday before the Twentieth Century Club by Dr. Roswell Johnson, of the University of Pittsburgh, who has spent the last four summers in Russia. Inadequate housing conditions, communistic restaurants where the staple articles are mush, cabbage soup, potatoes and black bread, no family life, the largest birth rate in the world, easy divorce, lack of doctors, overcrowded hospitals were all mentioned in his talk. The youth movement in Russia is unparalleled, Dr. Johnson says, and the young educated Communists are almost Puritanical where divorce and bigamy are concerned.

Church going places, a woman under suspicion, he said. The constant espionage felt everywhere in the country and the continuous feeding of Communistic propaganda were other topics discussed by the speaker, who thinks the five-year industrial plan will be a failure. Dr. Johnson, however, thinks Russia is not a war-menace to the world and she will not become so if she has healthy contacts with other nations.

Arrange Program At School for Blind

A Thanksgiving program will be given tomorrow at the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind for the 153 pupils, some of whom will participate. School will be dismissed at noon for the Thanksgiving recess.

Dances Given At Drama Meeting

There was the usual good attendance yesterday at the monthly luncheon meeting of the drama department, Congress of Clubs, and the program, which was carried out according to schedule, was enjoyed by everyone present. Perhaps the most outstanding feature, at least on account of its novelty, was the trio of dances presented by Miss Betty MacDonald, New York danseuse, a flashing, graceful bit of femininity who gave each dance in a strikingly different costume. Miss Bessie Hubach was at the piano as accompanist for Miss MacDonald.

Miss Marianne Genet's songs as sung by Marjorie Evans Stewart with the composer accompanying comprised the music for the occasion and, to complete the entertainment, a playlet called "Friendship," was done by Mrs. J. Smith Christy, Miss Helen Irwin, Mrs. R. J. Gibson and Mrs. L. A. Hubach. The playlet was written by Mrs. Chester F. Johnston for the silver anniversary of the Bellevue Woman's Literary Club.

Hostesses yesterday were Mrs. A. D. Smith, Mrs. Fleming Jamieson, Mrs. Joseph B. Drake, Mrs. S. J. Corbett, Mrs. George L. Price, Miss Miriam Schonfield and Mrs. J. C. Schreiner.

"The Scotch Irish in Pennsylvania" is the subject of an address which Councilman Robert Garland will give Monday before the Pittsburgh Colony of New England. It is to be the colony's annual invitation day and will be held in the Edgewood Club with Mrs. S. W. Munnis and Mrs. George Stebbins as hostesses.

Garland To Speak

One of the most interesting book talks the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club has ever heard was that given yesterday by Miss Eleanor Gilchrist, of the Penguin Book Shop, daughter of one of the members. Miss Gilchrist divided her talk under three heads, biographies, letters and travel books, novels and poetry, including in the latter only one volume—Louise Untermeyer's anthology. Mrs. John E. McKirdy, a former president of the club, reported the State Federation convention.

Miss Elsie Hoewischer, of Boggs & Buhl, will speak on "Correct Luncheon Table Appointments" at Friday afternoon's meeting of the Emsworth Civic Club in the borough hall. An exhibit of china, glass and pottery assembled by the club members and their friends will be an added feature.

The origin of Thanksgiving, which she traced to the time of the Canaanites, was discussed yesterday by Mrs. Andrew Bartram at the Homestead Woman's Club meeting. Mrs. R. R. McWhinney read President Washington's Thanksgiving Proclamation and that of President Hoover and then read a humorous sketch comparing conditions in the two administrations. Mrs. W. J. Quigley added an O. Henry story to the program.

NEWEST GARMENTS REVEAL SMARTNESS IN SIMPLICITY

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—It's smart to be simple when the simplicity is smart seems to be the slogan of many of the frocks now being shown. Their simplicity is deceptive for it is the outcome of the finest craftsmanship and involved design. Such a frock when worn seems at first glance to be the essence of simplicity, but a more detailed inspection reveals its intricacies. This is especially true of the black velvet frock that sits so simply on the figure with an utter absence of ornamentation or manipulation of the material. These frocks are usually very expensive, but pay for the outlay by giving excellent service throughout the season without showing any signs of sartorial senescence.

CHANEL SEEMS to have played the black velvet market this season and most successfully too. She is showing an impressive number of models made of this lovely fabric in the finest quality. It is the soft, sheer weave known as ring velvet. This fabric permits of deft manipulation and tucking without adding to its bulk, and therefore ideal for cloaks especially. The frock by Chanel shown here is classically simple in its black velvet dignity and shows the prevailing skirt-length for evening as determined by Chanel. The bodice is clinging and in one piece with close-fitting skirt yoke. Three points in front forming the decolletage are joined by an almost invisible strip of flesh-colored chiffon. The back decolletage forms a V so deep that it reaches quite to the waistline. The skirt is circular and has a crisp flare. The Chanel evening wrap is of black velvet lined with white velvet, collared in white fox. The shoulder yoke and all the lower part of the wrap is laid in tiny hand-made tucks worked vertically, ending just above the ankle and flaring in a little ruffle. There are no sleeves, the wrap being drawn around the arms cape fashion and held shut in front.

THE PRACTICAL but charming little tailored suit by Patou has much to recommend it. The jacket is of dark brown woolen, while the skirt is in striped beige and brown. It is laid in three flat pleats. The coat is slightly fitted at the moderately low waistline just atop the hips, and has two large patched pockets. This model shows eloquently the smartness of a monotoned jacket with a striped skirt.

AND THE SOPHISTICATE CHOOSES PRIMROSE BEIGE

Your skin is darkest in the fall and if you would have that natural finish, never use a very light powder unless you want to imitate the leopard. Light shades make the skin spotty. Extra dark powder ages and hardens the face. The ideal powder blends with the skin itself, bringing out all the natural light and color. It is so dreamily light in texture that it actually becomes a part of the skin. It never cakes or clogs but it clings beautifully. A luxury? Perhaps. But you can easily prove its worth by trying a dollar's worth of this $3 powder.

At all better class drug and department stores, in boxes, $1 and $3. Primrose House, 595 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

ROBBERS GIVEN LONG TERMS

Penitentiary terms running from 30 to 60 years were imposed on members of a robber gang in Criminal Court by Judge George V. Moore, and today members of the Kulesik gang settled down to long terms behind the bars.

Leo Kulesik, 19, of 47 Barry street, pleaded guilty to having participated in nine robberies and was given 30 to 60 years.

Albert Kulesik, 22, his older brother, participated in two jobs, he said, and was sentenced to serve 10 to 20 years.

Kasmir Skorzewski, 22, admitted four robberies and got 10 to 20 years.

Theodore Wijcicki, 19, committing his first offense, drew a sentence to Huntingdon Reformatory.

John Igler, 19, of 3102 Mission street, and Joseph Skarupa, 22, of 2504 Josephine street, stood trial on one robbery and a stolen automobile charge. They were found guilty and the former given 10 to 20 years and the latter five to 10 years.

Law Says 'Hunt,' But Grounds All Posted

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 25.—While two townships of Venango County—Oakland and Cherry Tree—are "open" to hunting of doe deer the last three days of this month, posting of lands against hunting is proceeding so rapidly that less than 10 per cent of restricted licenses have been issued. Hunters are considerably chagrined at the posting against hunting.

SIMPLE HOME MIXTURE DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Cincinnati Barber Tells How Any One Can Prepare It in 5 Minutes

Any man or woman can easily look twenty years younger by simply darkening their gray, faded, or streaky hair. This is now easy to accomplish with a receipe given by a well known Cincinnati barber.

Simply take a half-pint of water, add one ounce of bay rum, ¼ ounce of glycerine and a small box of Barbo Compound. Shake and it is ready to use. These ingredients can be bought at drug stores at trifling cost.

Applied to the hair twice weekly this delightful mixture quickly gives the desired shade. It is easy to use, is not sticky or greasy, will not color the scalp and does not rub off.

ORIENTAL RUG

IMPORTER AND EXPERT

With many of Pittsburgh's wealthiest families as my customers, I have visited this city from 1885 to 1910. Now, I am here once more, at 445 Wood Street, with some of the very best oriental art rugs in existence. These must be sold at once, as it is absolutely necessary that I raise $125,000 cash at once, or lose my Ambassador Apartment in Philadelphia.

Although I have always been a strictly one-price merchant, it has been necessary to mark these at prices which represent a great sacrifice.

Here are silk rugs and other oriental rugs—all the very best ever produced—at prices unbelievably low. These rugs are in sizes 3 by 5 to 20 by 35 feet, and prices range from $25.00 to $35,000.

TURKEY DRESSINGS.

OYSTER STUFFING—Two cups cooked oysters, 3 cups soft bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Mix thoroughly. 1 small onion, ¼ cup milk in which oysters were cooked, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 stalks chopped celery.

DUTCH DRESSING—Three cups bread crumbs, Milk to cover, 3 eggs, beaten, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon ground sage, 3 sour apples, ½ pound bacon, 1 medium sized onion.

Soak bread crumbs in milk enough to cover. Squeeze dry, add eggs, seasonings and apples, chopped. Cut bacon into thin strips and put in a frying pan with the chopped onion. Fry until brown, being careful not to burn the bacon. Combine the two mixtures and stir well.

SAUSAGE STUFFING—Cook ½ tablespoon finely minced onion in 4 tablespoons butter for 5 minutes. Add ¼ pound sausage meat and cook 2 minutes longer. Add 1½ cups mashed sweet potatoes which have been seasoned with salt and pepper.

JELLIED CRANBERRY SALAD—Cook a quart of cranberries in 2 cups of water until they start to pop. Strain or use just as they are. Add 1½ cups sugar while still hot. Soak 2½ tablespoons gelatine in ¼ cup water. Dissolve in boiling cranberry solution. Add chopped celery—1 cupful—and a cup of chopped nutmeats and allow to cool in individual molds. Unmold on lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

Combine together in the order given, 1½ cups cocoanut, shredded; 2 cups cooked pumpkin, mashed; 1 cup sugar; ½ teaspoon mace; ½ teaspoon cinnamon; ½ teaspoon allspice; 3 tablespoons butter, melted; 3 eggs, slightly beaten; 2 cups milk, scalded.

Mark Twain swore by American food. Heading the list of viands he specially ordered on his return to American shores from his famous tramp abroad was wild turkey and cranberry sauce.

The great American humorist had a decided preference for the kitchens of his homeland; nor was he alone in his appreciation of turkey and cranberry sauce as a gastronomic specialty.

In common with many other great discoveries, it was probably by accident that the cranberry was first served with turkey. But our Pilgrim forefathers started the custom of serving the two together and now their affiliation has become traditional.

We should eat cranberries with turkey, and we do! Through its mineral salts so necessary in building of body tissues, and through the other elements essential to proper nutrition, this strictly and patriotically American fruit is making a valuable contribution to diet. It is appetizing and delicious every day in the year, and its exquisite, quivering red brilliance makes it a feast for the eye as well as for the palate.

Cranberry Sauce is one of the most adaptable versions of the cranberry. It is easy to prepare, always delicious, and it takes precisely 10 minutes to make:

Boil 1½ to 2 cups of sugar and 2 cups of water together for five minutes; add a quart or a pound (4 cups) of cranberries and boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient), until the skins pop open. Remove from fire when popping stops.

EIGHT GOOSE-EGGS IN LIONS' GAMES

PENN STATE, with one game more to play here on Thursday, will not be far from a new record for scoreless performances in football for its first season under Coach Bob Higgins. Of the eight games played to date, four resulted in shutouts for one side or the other, with two others ending in scoreless ties, to make a total of eight goose eggs for the eight games. The only major team to beat that in 1930 was Chicago, the record for the Maroons showing nine ciphers for themselves or their opponents. In only two of Penn State's games was a score registered by both teams, the count having been 31 to 14 against Niagara in the opener and 19 to 7 against State in the meeting with Bucknell.

Bob Higgins

The Lions shut out Lebanon Valley, 27 to 0, and Marshall, 65 to 0. In turn they were blanked by Colgate, 40 to 0, and by Iowa, 19 to 0. The scoreless ties were played with Lafayette and Syracuse. This equals State's goose-egg record, made in 1928, when eight of the nine scheduled games resulted in shutouts, either for the Lions or against them. The only exception was the Syracuse encounter, which ended in a 6-to-6 tie.

SINCE COLGATE HANDED Penn State a 40-to-0 defeat recently, there has been much speculation as to the time when a Mt. Nittany team was beaten by an equal or greater margin. The score has been exceeded six times in State history and equaled once. The last time it was beaten dates back 30 years to 1900, when the Lions lost to the Navy, 44 to 0. A peculiar quirk was that the next week the Center Countians turned around and walloped Gettysburg by the same score.

Previous high scores with State on the losing end were marked up in 1889, when Lehigh won, 106 to 0; in 1896, when Carlisle won, 48 to 5; in 1897, when Cornell won, 45 to 0; in 1898, when Penn won, 40 to 0, and in 1899, when Yale won, 42 to 0, and Penn won, 47 to 0. The Lions' score of 65 to 0 against Marshall on October 11, this year, was the largest total run up by a Penn State team since 1925, when Susquehanna was buried under an 82-to-0 landslide.

IN THEIR NEWLY developed center troubles, the Panthers are fortunate to have among their reserves such a capable snapperback as Joe Tormey, Erie resident, who has been Ralph Daugherty's understudy during the present season.

Joe Tormey

Judging from the evidence of ability shown by Tormey every time he has had a chance to break into the Pitt lineup this fall, Coach Sutherland will be able to plug any hole at center at short notice.

THOUGH ONLY A sophomore, Tormey has already established himself as one of the best linemen on the Panther squad. Line Coach Bill Kern predicted big things for him when the season opened, and the rapid rate at which Joe has developed has more than borne out Kern's prophesies. Under ordinary conditions, Tormey would have been a regular this year, being kept on the second string only by reason of the fact that the center job was in the hands of such an exceptional player as Daugherty. It isn't often that such a team as Notre Dame picks out a substitute on an opposing eleven for special praise, but that was the case when the Irish played here last month. After the game one of the Notre Dame players surprised his listeners by expressing the opinion that Tormey looked like future all-America stuff. When informed that Tormey was only Daugherty's understudy he said: "That doesn't make a bit of difference. I think Tormey could make any team in the country."

THE PLAYERS STARTING for Pitt and Penn State in Thursday afternoon's game at the Stadium will, with few exceptions, be playing before home folk, as they are residents of this district. The Panthers have Hirshberg, McKeesport; Quatse, Greensburg; Lewis, Steelton; Milligan, McKees Rocks; Baker, Nanticoke; Heller, Steelton; Reider, New Castle; Hood, Monaca, and Tully, Wheeling.

Penn State has Edwards, Greensburg; Shawley, State College; Duvall, Monessen; Miller, Wilkinsburg; Lasich, Clairton; Stempeck, Turtle Creek, and McMillen, Punxsutawney. The Lions will be accompanied by 3,000 followers. The Penn State band and all the cheering and stunt brigades also will be on hand.

THE ACQUISITION OF Al Bool from the Pirates by the Braves does not mean that the Boston management intends to part with Catcher Al Spohrer, according to President Emil Fuchs, of the Hub club.

Al Spohrer

It was reported recently, following the transfer of Bool to the McKechnie camp, that Rogers Hornsby had opened negotiations for the release of Spohrer and that a deal was likely to develop at any time that would send the Boston backstop to the Cubs for the 1931 season. Fuchs declares the rumor is unfounded.

"MANAGER M'KECHNIE thinks highly of Spohrer and there is no chance that the catcher will be traded to the Cubs or to any other club, so far as I can see," said Fuchs. "Spohrer's improvement last season was remarkable, and if he continues to progress at that rate McKechnie says he will not have an equal in the National League. He is on the upgrade and has the right sort of spirit. We are not going to hesitate about making changes when we believe they can help us to give Boston a stronger club. We have obtained some new men and are on the lookout for others. It may be that Hornsby or somebody else connected with the Chicago club said that Spohrer might wear a Cub uniform next year. But I wish to say that no offer has been made for Spohrer by the Cubs, and it would have to be an extraordinary one to receive any consideration."

PITTSBURGH IS LIKELY to be well represented on the all-East football team that Andy Kerr will take to the Pacific Coast for the annual Shrine Hospital benefit game with an All-West combination. The Colgate coach is not overlooking this city in his hunt for the best material available for the trip.

Carnegie Tech which meets W. & J. in a big game at The Stadium next Saturday for the benefit of the unemployed, has been honored with one of Kerr's first inquiries. In a letter to the Skibo officials, he asks for information as to whether it will be convenient for some of the Skibos to make the jaunt, mentioning John Karcis, Howard Eyth, Ted Rosenzweig, John Highberger, John Dreshar and Latham Flanagan. He will not require the services of all of these, of course, but in all probability at least two of the Plaid gridders will be invited to play on the coast.

UP ON THE Bluff the Dukes are getting ready for their final game of the season, which will be one of the Thanksgiving Day football attractions here, a battle with the strong Providence College team at Forbes Field on Thursday morning, starting at 10:30 o'clock. It will be a severe test for the Red and Blue after only four days' rest, as the strength of Providence has been proved by its victory over Rutgers and a fine showing through a hard schedule that included games with Holy Cross, Coast Guard, Clarkson Tech, Canisius, Lowell Textile and St. John's of Brooklyn.

However, the Bluffites are full of fight and determined to wind up the campaign with a victory, if possible, and signs point to one of

When the Yellow Jackets meet the Windsor Bulldogs in an International Hockey League game at Duquesne Garden tonight, the local lineup will reflect President - Manager Roy D. Schooley's attitude toward a losing combination.

Jack Duncan

When the Jackets met the London Panthers in the opener here on November 13, they lost by 3 to 0. The result: Schooley signed Duke McCurry and used him in revamping the locals' defense. Buck Moore was dropped from the spare front line.

These changes bolstered the local lineup to such an extent that the Jackets were able to outplay the league-leading Buffalo Bisons in their second home start, last Thursday night, but a "break" gave the visitors the decision, 3-2. Schooley promptly forgot the break and his team's great fight. He did remember that his team lost. The result:

COX IN NETS

Tonight Albie Cox, veteran goalie obtained from the Montreal Maroons, will be in the Pittsburgh nets in place of Bud Fisher; Tubby Moore, a 195-pounder also obtained from Montreal, will dispute local defensemen's right to remain on the squad, and Midget McLeod, who has shown plenty of fight and skill at center, probably will supplant Whitey Fields as pivot on the starting front line.

Fisher, who is to retained, is a pretty good goalie; Schooley wants an exceptionally good goalie, and in Cox, who achieved stardom with New Haven and then graduated to Boston, he thinks he has a man who may fill the bill. The local defense showed strength against Buffalo, but Schooley thinks the acquisition of Tubby Moore may make it even stronger. Fields is a fine offensive center, but Schooley thinks the shifting of McLeod may add to the front line's strength as a defensive unit.

The local club prexy has obtained a permit from immigration officials which will allow him to import 10 more icemen from Canada. If the Jackets lose tonight, several more changes probably will be instituted without any delay. Indications are that if the Jackets aren't winners at the finish it will be because Canada's supply of hockey talent is exhausted.

BULLDOGS DANGEROUS

The Jackets' showing against Buffalo's fine team indicates that they will not lose tonight, but Windsor's record indicates that the Bulldogs are capable of putting up a stirring fight.

In their last two starts the Bulldogs, of whom no less than six have been trained by the Mont-

Radio Grid Fans To Pay to Hear Tech-W. & J.

The Carnegie Tech-Wash.-Jeff. benefit game for the unemployed in the Pitt Stadium Saturday will be broadcast by Station KDKA. Arrangements were completed today, the station dropping the Notre Dame-Army game in Chicago.

Howard Harpster, former all-America quarterback at Tech and at present head coach at Geneva College, will give a technical description of the contest. John S. Herron, president of City Council, has been invited to give a three-minute talk between halves. Max Hannum, director of sport publicity at Tech, will broadcast a running story of the contest, with appropriate sidelights and a short review of the contest after the game.

A plea will be made that all those who listen in on the game contribute to the unemployment fund from 25 cents up.

SOUTHPAW GRID STAR TO GIVE TECH TROUBLE

By JESS CARVER.

A swell left foot, backed up by a powerful port side leg, is likely as not to stand between Carnegie Tech and a victory over Wash-Jeff here Saturday afternoon in the big benefit game in the Stadium.

The afore-mentioned left hoof will be swung by hefty Stewie Wilson, Wash-Jeff's southpaw kicking and passing fullback. Wilson is about as good a punter as there is in the district, not excepting Ed Bartrug, of West Virginia. He also is an accurate passer, and this year has shown no little class as a smasher of opposing lines.

At any rate, Wilson must be counted as a formidable threat by the Tartans. He'll keep 'em back in the hole all he can, and if he gets any help at all from his ends, he figures to make it a tough afternoon for Carnegie.

BOX SEATS GO

From the way folks are coming to the fore and buying seats for this game, it looks as though there would be a fine crowd on hand for the game. The list of box holders is growing every day. Some of the recent purchasers of box seats include W. C. Robinson, C. H. Curry and Floyd Rose. Col. Harry Fry, Tech's first football coach, also has applied for a box.

In order to give the kiddies a chance to do their bit for charity's sake, Graduate Manager Buddy (Three to Nine) Overend announced yesterday that all children under 16 years of age would be admitted to the ball game for 10 cents.

Pitt and the Dukes have a bit of football to play this week, prior to Saturday's benefit tussle. The Dukes have to take on tough and rugged Providence College Thanksgiving morning and Pitt has its annual battle with Penn State on for the afternoon.

If everything were ale and cakes out at Pitt, the outlook for the State game would be rosy enough, but things are not clicking so well for the dear old Panthers.

Last week Rip Collins and Jim MacMurdo, varsity ends, were dropped from the squad because of scholastic deficiencies. Yesterday, it became known that Ralph Daugherty, the only consistent player Pitt has been able to boast all season, was wrangling with the coaches and officials and might quit the team. Doc is as fine a chap as you would wish to meet, and if he's having trouble then something must be wrong.

PITT WOES MANY

Pitt has had more woes than Job himself this year. The stars have been injured, there has been some dissatisfaction in one quarter or another at times and not once has the club clicked as it should.

Penn State isn't a formidable ball club, but it boasts a pip of a pair of ends and some mighty good backs. You can't take a chance with ends such as Kaplan and Edwards, or with ball toters and passers of the ability of French, Lasich and Deitrich. Joe Miller is able to cause a peck of trouble, too.

Wouldn't it be a surprise if State would rise to the occasion and kick Dr. Sutherland's staggering ball club right out of the Stadium Thursday? It certainly would be a feather in the cap of genial Bob Higgins.

DAUGHERTY NOT OUT

Questioned about rumors that Ralph Daugherty, Pitt star, had quit the team, W. D. Harrison, director of athletics, said that Daugherty was still a member of the squad, despite the fact that he had not turned out for practice recently.

The players were given holidays on Monday and Tuesday follow-

A local girls' field hockey team played the Wetomachek Field Hockey Association, of Chicago, in a game on the Pitt field yesterday afternoon, with the visitors winning, 8 to 0. M'TIERNAN HANDS BAKER BAD BEATING

BUCK FLOORS FOE TWICE FOR NINE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, fighting one of his coolest and most impressive bouts, just about put the finishing touches on the long and colorful ring career of gallant Sergt. Sammy Baker, of New York, in the main bout of 10 rounds at Motor Square Garden last night.

Suffering his first defeat in many starts in local arenas, Baker barely lasted the limit through his generalship and ability to absorb punches that would have belted out many a younger campaigner. As it was, he was down for a count of nine in the third round and again just before the bell in the final session. He didn't win a round, but at the finish got a cheer from the crowd for his game stand in the face of the ceaseless barrage of sharpshooting glovefire.

TAKES BAD BEATING

Baker was not the same Sergt. Sammy who fought those two thrilling battles with Joe Trippe in the same ring last season. He has slipped back considerably since then. But he still is tough and has ring sense and is game to the core. Throughout his slaughter last night, he fought back at every opportunity, but the sting was gone from his punches and he hurt McTiernan only once, with a left to the body while Buck was belaboring him in a neutral corner in the ninth round. Almost always he found McTiernan's straight left jab in his face, poking an opening for a right. Time after time he was dazed and staggered, and it was amazing how he managed to go the route.

McTiernan took command at the opening bell and had Baker in retreat when the first round ended. He had him out on his feet in the second and dropped him with right, left and right to the jaw for a count of nine in the third, and it looked like an early finish. A straight right cross at the start of the fifth round staggered Baker, but he pulled himself together with an effort and carried on like the soldier that he is. The Sergeant's knees were buckling in the sixth, but he managed to clinch until he got the rubber out of them and then, while he was taking a tremendous amount of punishment he kept out of real danger until just before the final bell, when a right flush on the jaw dropped him into the ropes for another count of nine.

McTiernan weighed 153½ pounds and Baker 149.

PRELIMS SHORT-LIVED

All three preliminaries ended in knockouts or technical kayos and the crowd was sent on its way home early. Jack Wilson, of the North Side, 154½, was declared a technical knockout winner over Georgie Chambers, 152, in the third round of the scheduled eight-round semi-final, when Referee Al Grayber stopped the bout after 1 minute 15 seconds of the round because a deep cut over Chambers' left eye was bleeding badly and blinding him. Chambers was out in front so far as the bout went, having done all of the forcing from the start and stabbed the slow-to-warm-up Wilson with plenty of straight lefts and punched him solidly around the body. It was Wilson's second technical knockout win over Chambers, whom he stopped in two rounds in his first Pittsburgh appearance, at the Moose Temple, last season.

Jack Tracey, local Negro, 160, repeated a two-round knockout victory over Bob McCaffrey, of Youngstown, same weight, in the second bout, Referee Robinson calling a halt after McCaffrey had taken counts of eight and nine and gone down a third time in the round.

GORNICK KNOCKED OUT

Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, 137½ pounds, was winning handily over Mike Tishko, of Rankin, same weight, in the first round of the opener when he suddenly ran into a right hand wallop to the jaw and was laid out for the full count.

Chappie Couch was back as timer following his illness, working with Norman Borland. Harry Klaas was the announcer and the judges were the two Franks—Brown and Ferris. Al Friedman, of Boston, and Emmett Rocco, of Ellwood City, heavyweights, were announced as the windup principals for next Monday night. The house was large.

Clint Benedict, their goalie, has been in pro hockey for 17 years. He guarded the cage for the Maroons last season. Dr. Stan Brown and Jack Arbour, two of the visitors' vets, will come in for more than their share of attention. The former has played here many times with various Canadian teams, and the latter is a brother of Ty Arbour, former Yellow Jacket and Pirate star. The probable lineup:

Three Fight Shows Are Called Off

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—A boxing card scheduled here for last night was postponed after two of the fighters, Pete Herman, Connellsville, and Mickey Conroy, Bellaire, O., were reported by Commissioner Ra. Gardner to have failed to put in an appearance. The matches will be held here two weeks hence.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—A fight card scheduled for Johnstown's auditorium was called off last night when managers of the principals in the main bout—Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, and Battling Gizzy, of Donora—failed to patch up weight differences. Gizzy was said to have weighed in at 136¼ for a fight that called for a 133 limit.

At Aliquippa, Ray Eberle, scheduled to make his debut as a promoter, called off his show yesterday afternoon due to prospects of a poor house and also to make way for a counter-benefit attraction in that town.

LIONS SCRIMMAGE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Two Penn State football teams yesterday took turns in scrimmaging against a mythical Pittsburgh eleven. The second team got a touchdown in the scrimmage, but the first squad gained more consistently. Zorella, varsity guard, returned to scrimmage for the first time in more than three weeks.

The Tipoff

The Dukes, congratulating themselves in stopping so successfully the great Cliff Battles Saturday, started preparations yesterday for the game with Providence.

They call Providence the Fighting Friars and fighters they certainly have been. Providence doesn't win all its ball games, not by a long shot, but the boys make it very, very tough indeed for any team that beats 'em.

Fourteen of the Dukes will wind up their varsity careers in the game Thanksgiving morn. Included in this list will be Jos McCarthy, Doggo Burns, George Kemp, Sammit Pratt, Joe O'Donnell, Tom Kirby, Bud Devinney, Ganey Benedict and Pat Lally and Maish Silverstein, all of whom have been important members of the Bluffite cast for the past three seasons.

Grove City, despite a more impressive record, may find Thiel a much tougher foe than the Grovers imagine. Thanksgiving, Thiel annually gives the Crimson a far from enjoyable Turkey Day, and while the Lutherans haven't won a lot of ball games, they have the weight and the class to force Charley Berry's team to the very limit.

West Virginia will head for Chicago tonight for its shrine benefit game Thursday with Oregon State at Soldiers' Field. The Mountaineers took the edge off this game by losing to Wash-Jeff Saturday. What was Chicago's loss, however, was Pittsburgh's gain, for the President victory certainly will not do our benefit tussle in the Stadium any harm.

SMILERS PLAY STARS

The Pleasant Valley Smilers and Roddy Cole's All-Stars will meet Thanksgiving morning at the Pleasant Valley field. The All-Stars will be composed of the leading players in the district, and the game will be called at 11:30.

Two newcomers in the West Penn League, Pittsburgh's best amateur circuit, make their debut in the circuit tonight when St. Michael's opposes the North Side Buicks in St. Joseph's Lyceum. The contest marks the second one of the first half schedule, the South Side Falcons and the Ray E. Schneiders having opened the season last night at the South Side Falcon Hall.

Both the Buicks and St. Michael's five have been coming to the fore rapidly in local amateur circles and they should have no trouble making the grade in the West Penn League. Both teams have been prominent factors in amateur basketball for a number of years and they will present strong lineups in their opening tattle tonight.

INSTITUTIONAL CARD SET

To Trinity Cathedral goes the honor of opening the newly-formed Honus Wagner Institutional League, composed of six teams in the tri-county basketball district, next Monday. The downtown quintet will have Tom Winnie's Homewood Presbyterian aggregation for its opening game opposition.

This loop also is featuring Bellevue and I. K. S. Ziggy Kahn's passers will swing into action Friday of next week when Montgomery brings North Boroughs to the Settlement.

Homewood will open at home Thursday of next week with Walthour's Coraopolis Y. M. C. A. aggregation as its foe. The first half schedule follows:

Between Rounds

Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, rising young welterweight star, and Jimmy Neal, of Cincinnati, have been matched to box the 10-round main bout at the Moose Temple Friday night, with Frank Novak and Dan Gallagher, heavies, meeting in a return bout in the semi-final and Jackie Wilson and Bud Mahoney boxing the opener, and Moze Butch meeting Al Iovino in the second bout.

Neal comes here with quite a record. He has boxed Elmer Bezenah, Howard Mitchell, Ray Newton, Syd Conn, Jimmy Reed and Jack Fursis, among others, and one of his opponents, Sammy Buchannan, died following a bout with him.

Harry Williams, local Negro light-heavyweight, is back from a two months' visit to his former home in Cincinnati, where he went until his broken right hand mended. He has been working out for a week and will be ready for a battle with Harold Scarney, of Youngstown, on the Al Friedman-Emmett Rocco card at Motor Square Garden next Monday night.

Sun-Tele Drivers In Benefit Game

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph drivers will meet the drivers of the Pittsburgh Press in their annual Thanksgiving Day football game on the Duquesne University gridiron Thursday morning at 10:30 a. m.

The proceeds of the game will be turned over to a charitable organization. This is the third game between the two teams. The first ended in a 6-6 deadlock, while the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph team won last year, 7 to 0.

RING INSPECTOR DIES

Floor Notes

Irving Volkin, former Kingsley House and Tempest Club forward, promises to make a name for himself as a regular on Ziggy Kahn's Irene Kaufmann Settlement House quintet this season. Volkin is a seasoned performer and his work in the early games of the season indicate that he will enjoy his best year on the floor. Volkin's work with Kingsley House in the West Penn League last season left no room for complaint. He should prove a tower of strength to the I. K. S. this winter.

H. M. Delmanto, manager of the Mieles in the Allegheny County League is eager to get in touch with Eddie Jesko, former star of the Goldensons, and Joey Drotar, one time Duquesne Lafayette and Saltzer flash. Delmanto can be reached by calling Court 3220.

Westinghouse Club meets Kingsley House on the Kingsley floor tomorrow night in the Allegheny County Amateur League inaugural.

The Red McMahan Club, which is playing preliminary games at the South Side Falcons' West Penn League attractions, has compiled a remarkable record during its three years as a basketball organization. The South Siders have won 142 games and lost only 14 during that space of time. Next Monday the McMahans meet the St. Michael's Lyceum of Oakland.

Trinity Cathedral Royals open Faith Chapel's home season in the Pittsburgh Senior Church League tonight. The game starts at 8:30.

A. H. MATHIES

Mathies, Kiski faculty member and former instructor and coach of all athletics at the Ben Avon High School, has been appointed basketball coach at Kiski Prep School. PRICE QUITS CALIFORNIA

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—C. M. (Nibs) Price tendered his resignation as head football coach at the University of California to the student executive committee last night.

"My resignation was due to my belief that it was the only way to prevent the dissension that was bound to follow the present unsuccessful football season," Price said. "The way is more open for discussion free from embarrassment, due to personalities. No coach can hope for success without the support of public opinion as represented by alumni.

"Since it has been made apparent that their support is lacking in my case, no other course consistent with the good of the university was open to me than to resign.

"I desire to express my sincere appreciation for the loyalty of my staff and of the boys whom I have had the privilege of coaching. To my successor, I wish the utmost success."

The executive committee, whose action is final, voted to pay Price his salary for next year.

Price's resignation also included his withdrawal from basketball and other sports. He had turned out championship basketball teams. The California coach took over the reins in 1926 upon the death of Andy Smith, whose "wonder team" was the sensation of the Pacific Coast Conference some years ago.

Price came to California from San Diego, where he taught the fundamentals of football to Brick Muller and other California stars.

DISTRICT NO. 8 IS ONE OF TWO NEW SECTIONS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—High school athletics will be controlled and state-wide competitions conducted by the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association on a basis of 10 district groupings, Edmund B. Wicht, secretary, said yesterday. The change was made at the November meeting of the organization's state board of control by the addition of two new districts.

The changes will affect the western and northwestern sections of the state and are effective immediately. As one result, the plan for the annual basketball tournament conducted by the P. I. A. A. will be redrafted to permit the final elimination from 10 district winners instead of eight next March.

MANY CHANGES

The two Eastern districts and the two South-Central districts (Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 5) will remain intact under the revised grouping.

District No. 4 will be affected only by the addition of Potter County, which has been transferred from the former District No. 8.

Districts Nos. 5 and 6 will retain their present grouping, but the Pittsburgh city schools will be taken from District No. 7 and will constitute a new district to be known as No. 8.

The second new district, to be known as No. 9, will comprise the counties of McKean, Cameron, Clarion, Elk, Jefferson and Forest, all formerly incorporated in the old District No. 8 grouping.

The remaining counties of the original District No. 8 will constitute the District No. 10.

NATIONAL GROUPING

The changes are described as furnishing a more natural grouping of the counties and giving consideration to the needs peculiar to the city of Pittsburgh, in which 28 member schools are located. Since each district is represented by a member on the state board of control, the schools of the Western metropolis will be directly represented on the board, while the other schools of the Southwestern part of the state will retain their representation through District No. 7.

The changes, consequently, effect the following present grouping of the counties:

District No. 3—Adams, Berks, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Juniata, Lancaster, Lebanon, Perry and York.
District No. 8—Pittsburgh.
District No. 10—Crawford, Erie, Mercer, Venango and Warren.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 68.

As I write these stories, my mind constantly goes back to the humorous side of baseball in earlier days, and this, of course, stimulates fresh memories of Rube Waddell.

Connie Mack.

During the time Waddell was with the Athletics, we had for a season or two a trainer named Frank Newhause.

This man came from Denver and looked after Young Corbett, the boxer, when he was world champion. I already have told how difficult it was for me to get the Rube away from Corbett and Newhouse when they left the Pacific Coast on the same train.

Waddell duly joined the Athletics and one spring when were in need of a trainer I signed Newhause to look after my players. This made a big hit with Waddell, who recalled him as Corbett's trainer.

During the season that Newhause joined us the Rube constantly was figuring in escapades that jeopardized his usefulness and to keep him under better control I hit on the scheme of having Newhause room with him and keep in his company at night.

A WADDELL STORY

Newhause never would leave Waddell. He accompanied him to the theater or race track, went with him on his two-day fishing excursions and protected him from the mob.

We staked Newhause with ample expense money and ordered him never to let the Rube get out of his sight. This arrangement caused Charles Dryden, that witty baseball writer, to refer to Newhause as Rube's keeper.

Now, the Rube esteemed Newhause personally and enjoyed his company, but, after a few weeks of it, he felt the effects of the restraint imposed on him.

So, one day, he came up to me with a biz kick. Why was he always followed by Newhause? Couldn't he ever have a minute to himself? It was an outrage the way he was hounded. He would not stand it a minute longer.

I took the attitude that I was surprised. With mock gravity, I replied:

"Does that fellow Newhause do these things? Why, Rube, I will fire him in the morning. I'm glad you told me this. I won't tolerate it for an instant."

"Oh, no, Connie," Rube pleaded. "Don't fire him. Just make him lay off me."

The more the Rube fought for Newhause's job, the more determined I was to fire him.

"SAVES" TRAINER'S JOB

We played battledore and shuttlecock for five minutes and I inwardly roared with laughter as the Rube cried at the top of his voice not to think of letting the trainer go, and I was just as strong to discharge him for annoying my great left-hander.

Never for a minute did the pitcher know I was playing a game with him, and, when he finally realized I was adamant, he turned to me in a groveling manner and said:

"Connie, forget all about it. He can sleep with me and run around with me at night. After all, he is a good fellow."

Another scene on the diamond that I never will forget was one day in Pittsburgh when we were playing Cincinnati.

Tim Hurst was the umpire and he made a decision that did not please Arlie Latham, the Cincinnati captain. At that time Latham was the most amusing clown in baseball.

He covered third base for Cincinnati, and, when Hurst made his questionable decision, he turned cartwheels from his position to the home plate to confront Hurst.

Then he started his argument with the umpire, and, to show his disgust, he threw his cap on the ground. Hurst, always hard-boiled, promptly kicked the cap away.

Arlie picked it up and again Hurst kicked it. This was repeated a half dozen times without Hurst receding from his stand, and then Latham turned cartwheels back to his position as spectators roared.

TEBEAU, THE FIGHTER

Another fire-eater in the early 70's was Pat Tebeau, manager of the Cleveland team, then in the National League. His team was playing in Pittsburgh and he almost came to blows with an umpire named Hoagland.

As a result, the umpire and Pat decided to settle the argument with fists after the game. As soon as the game ended, Pat opened a small gate leading under the grandstand and invited the umpire to follow him.

This gate seldom was used and few players knew about it. It was a short cut under the grandstand to the place were the visitors' bus waited.

Tebeau had use for the gate once or twice before, but all of his players used the regular gate to the bus.

Hoagland followed Tebeau with nobody else accompanying him. All others used the usual exits. Pat had a 20-yard lead on the umpire, who, as soon as he got under the stand, found it pitch dark. He couldn't see his hand before him and paused in the walk, yelling:

"Be fair, Pat, don't start fighting until I can see you."

UMPIRE FOILED

Any minute he expected Pat to come from the side and pop him and he repeated these words time and again. Hoagland finally managed to get to the end of the tunnel, where there was light.

He found nobody there except a grinning groundkeeper. Tebeau and the bus were well on the way to his hotel by that time. Everybody gave the umpire the laugh the next day, including Tebeau.

Tebeau was a willing fellow to start a fight, but he never finished one.

JIM BOTTOMLEY STAR WITHOUT A HOME

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

World series warfare is hardly a just test for a brilliant diamond performer, yet it seems to have transformed Sunny Jim Bottomley from a star into a player without a home.

Five or six great seasons in a row for Sunny Jim, including a big part in the winning of three pennants, do not seem to mean a thing to some folks who saw the hard hitter "fold up" in two short series that decided baseball supremacy.

GRIMES TO RESCUE

It may be more than a co-incidence that Bottomley falls down in the October classic, but if this be true, how can we dismiss his dangerous, consistent batting through the long summer days of the hard campaign?

Burleigh Grimes, it seems, is one expert source that comes to the rescue of Sunny Jim. Grimes recently had an argument, or discussion, with a fan in which the Duke of Burleigh appears to have scored a bullseye.

"Recently I met a merchant, who asked me to chat baseball," said Grimes. "The first question he popped was: 'Hey, did Sunny Jim Bottomly quit on you fellows?' I wanted to pop him right on the jaw for such a remark, but I decided to whip him at his own game.

JIM DIDN'T QUIT

"I asked him how his business was moving along two years ago. He told me he was cleaning up. A big year. Prosperity continued last year, too. His salesmen were hustling and selling everything.

"Then he told me he didn't think he could keep open three more months. His salesmen weren't selling hardly anything. He said he was frantic over the slump in his business.

"I had him. He fell into my trap. 'A bad year for you, eh? You cleaned up last year and the year before! Can't turn over your stuff this season though. Well, you and Jim Bottomly are in the same fix. Jim had six great years. This was a bad one.' The merchant shook my hands. He'd tell every one in town Jim Bottomley didn't quit on his pals. It was a bad year for Jim and a bad one for himself."

the best local games of the year. Incidentially, while getting the Duquesne team ready for the finale at Forbes Field, Coach Elmer Layden and Line Coach Joe Bach are putting themselves in trim for the charity game in which former Notre Dame stars will appear in New York on Sunday, December 14. Dr. John Weibel also may play if his hospital duties here will permit, and Clem Crowe, St. Vincent coach, is another possibility. In addition, Coach Layden has notified Knute Rockne that Buff Donnelli, Duke freshman coach, has volunteered his playing services if he can be of any assistance.

THE BOXING STABLE out which Kid Chocolate is a member is growing at such a rate that the Kid will have to take the world featherweight championship from Battling Battalino on December 12 to remain the topliner, a position on which his hold was shaken when he was decisively beaten by Fidel La Barba a few weeks ago. Luis Gutierrez, the wily manager of the stable, has just made another notable addition to it by taking under his wing Vidal Gregorio, Spanish bantamweight champion and a boy of much class. Only a couple of years ago, Gutierrez was practically unknown, but now he is directing an imposing array of Queensberry that includes, besides Chocolate and Gregorio, Victoria Campolo, heavyweight; Baby Joe Gans and Ignacio Ara, welterweights, and Black Bill, flyweight, not to mention Canada Lee, Mel Aragon, Eduardo Duarry and Mateo Oso. The entire stable cost Gutierrez only $2,000, Gans and Gregorio being the only members who had to be purchased from other managers. Yet it is estimated that the present value of his string of battlers is not less than $200,000.*

CHANGES URGED IN EXCHANGE STANDARDS

Introductions to Brokers And Questionnaire for Customers Suggested

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—With the approaching investigation of speculation, especially in so far as it involves the use of Federal Reserve funds, by a Senate sub-committee, headed by Carter Glass, of Virginia, likely to begin within a month, the New York Stock Exchange, after 138 years of service, is again on trial before the bar of public opinion.

Mr. Rukeyser

The losses, disappointments, and chaos, attending the panic and subsequent months of distressed liquidation, have diminished somewhat the heightened prestige and esteem, which the Stock Exchange, especially under the progressive administrations of the last decade, had achieved. Short-sighted individuals, who were cleaned out, seek to look beyond themselves for the cause of their losses. They overlook their own recklessness and their own lack of investment understanding, and seek to blame their broker or some other outsider.

SELF-REGULATION

Though unwise legislative restrictions are to be deprecated, it does not follow that the stock exchange should be smug and contented, in the face of the financial carnage done to vast multitudes who fed its members with fat commissions. The remedy, if there is one, lies in self-regulation.

Of late there has been a remarkably commendable evolution in New York Stock Exchange rules, designed to protect the public.

In the depression of 1921, the financial weakness of some member firms was dramatically revealed in a series of suspensions. Accordingly, the stock exchange, desiring to practice preventive medicine, inaugurated a system of questionnaires, which keep the exchange authorities periodically informed concerning the financial soundness of members. As a result of this system, the exchange frequently requires members to increase their ratio of capital, and has, as a result, reduced the probabilities of failure.

HIGHER STANDARDS

The time has come for the exchange, in my opinion, to go a step further and set higher standards for relations between broker and customer. It should immediately stop the practice of letting member firms cater to any Tom, Dick and Harry who happened to have enough cash for initial margin. It ought to require that each new marginal customer be introduced to a partner, or at least to the office manager—as a check on high pressured customers' men. The broker should submit to the would-be customer a questionnaire, asking about his credit standing, his reserve financial resources and his general ability to make financial commitments. A partner, or credit manager, should then pass upon the credit line to which the individual is entitled, just as a banker now does, and the stock exchange should insist that the questionnaire be on file for inspection by the exchange on demand.

When the account is opened, the broker should give the customer an ABC statement of what a margin transaction means, explaining that he is in effect making a demand loan with the broker, which will be called in part at a time when the collateral behind the loan has shrunken in market value.

STOCK PRICES PUSH QUIETLY UPWARD

Reassuring Financial and Trade News and Dividend Action Bolster Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—A little holiday cheer was infused into today's stock market as a few corporations provided sauce for the turkey in the form of extra or special dividends.

Share prices pushed quietly back to the high levels of the recovery, recorded last Friday. In addition to cheering dividend announcements, trade and financial news was in the main reassuring, particularly indications of further efforts to stabilize steel prices.

Trading was a little more lively than yesterday, and there were numerous gains of 2 points or so. The mail order shares sagged, after yesterday's brisk upturn, and the motion pictures declined moderately.

The reopening of some of the recently closed banks in the South and Southwest had a salutory effect upon sentiment.

The steel shares were helped by a firm stand taken on sheet prices by United States Steel. Some producers have advised customers that current minimum prices cannot be guaranteed for the first quarter.

Hope that copper producers may be able to maintain their 12-cent price was revived by an announcement that Anaconda and its subsidiaries are cutting production 10 per cent.

The weekly condition statement of the reporting Federal Reserve member banks showed a drop of $66,000,000 in loans against securities, or $16,000,000 greater than the drop in brokers' loans. All other, or commercial loans, increased $89,000,000.

Executives to Give Up Money to Aid Workers

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

OWEN D. YOUNG, Gerard Swope and all other General Electric Company executives are to give up 1 per cent of their salary, starting December 1 to help out G. E. workers who have been thrown idle because of inadequate orders to keep the plants operating full blast.

Will this example be copied by other corporation executives?

SEVERAL MONTHS ago an employes' unemployment pension plan was adopted at all G. E. factories. It was then stipulated that no payments would be made from the fund for at least six months after its inauguration. However, a substantial number of contributing employes having been laid off, immediate action has been decided upon.

Every employe, from president to office boy, who is working at least 50 per cent of full time will next week start contributing 1 per cent of his pay to the unemployment fund, and the company will match these contributions dollar for dollar. Some 35,000 employes have contributed $350,000.

PRESIDENT SWOPE yesterday made an announcement to all employes. Among other things he explained:

"Assistance is needed now. It has been the expressed feeling on the part of a good many who are working, including non-contributors under the plan, that they would like to feel they were doing their part in helping their fellow employes. Employes in supervisory positions and in other departments have expressed themselves similarly, and therefore without waiting for the six months to elapse.

"An unemployment emergency exists and collections will be made in December at the rate of 1 per cent of earnings of all those whose earnings are 50 per cent or more of normal.

"Notification will be given in December as to whether such emergency collections will continue in January.

"Contributing employes may be given assistance, but it will be limited to a maximum of $15 per week, because normal contributions have not been made for six months. Those who have not contributed will also be considered for assistance to tide them over this emergency. Help may also be given to the community in which the particular works is located in connection with the unemployment situation."

THIS VOLUNTARY taxing of themselves indicates that General Electric managers are sincerely considerate of their workers. Both Chairman Young and President Swope began life humbly and know what it means to struggle to make ends meet. Mr. Young has gone so far in outlining his vision of the coming power of labor in owning control of industry that capitalistic standpatters have shrugged their shoulders.

In a talk with Mr. Swope the other day he clearly revealed how much thought he has been devoting to improving the well-being of workers. This latest thoughtful act by General Electric is in harmony with the management's humane principles and policies.

A WONDERFUL mollifying effect upon the unemployed and others throughout the country has been made by the earnest efforts recently set in motion to provide emergency work in various cities and to supply food for the hungry. Whereas many letters poured into this column for months, the volume has greatly decreased in recent weeks. It is apparent that many of those who were extremely bitter have become convinced that responsible citizens are really striving conscientiously to look after the dire wants of the enforced idle.

IN MY OPINION, the concerted action lately taken to cope with unemployment has had not a little to do with the betterment in sentiment reflected in the security markets and in certain lines of business. Alarm over possible disturbance has subsided. Not only so, but federal, state and municipal authorities are through expediting public work furnishing increased purchasing power.

EVEN PESSIMISTS are now beginning to feel that by the time the sap rises in the trees, employment and prosperity will also rise.

The story of how Jacob Breyfogle discovered a rich gold mine in Death Valley and lost its location before he had staked it, is the dramatic chapter. Breyfogle, a desert man, was engaged to guide a party of Southerners through Austin, Nev., to join the fighting forces of the Confederacy. On the return trip alone, he made his famous discovery and had filled his pockets with rich specimens of fine gold when he was attacked by Indians and left for dead.
He managed to get back to Austin, but his mind was shaken and his memory gone. For over 40 years party after party searched in vain for this rich unstaked gold mine.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

The newspaper, radio and legal worlds will join hands tonight in some of the most unusual broadcasts yet to be offered to American listeners.

With the public acting as the jury "The Trial of Vivienne Ware" will open tonight at 10:30 o'clock under the sponsorship of the New York American, in the Times Square Studio of the N. B. C.

For six successive nights the "State," represented by the astute prosecutor, Ferdinand Pecora, will attempt to prove Miss Ware guilty of the murder of one Damon Fenwicke. George Gordon Battle, famous lawyer, in the role of counsel for the defense, will strive just as valiantly to prove her innocent of the charge. Noted stage and radio players will enact the parts of the witnesses in the case.

Radio Public to Hear Charge of Judge Warner

On Sunday night listeners, who have heard the testimony and whose interest has been heightened by an opportunity to win cash prizes for the best verdicts of "guilty" and "not guilty," will tune into the climax of the trial—the summations of the defense and prosecution and the charge to themselves, the jury, by Judge Wagner. They will hear the Court declare solemnly:

"Ladies and Gentlemen of the Radio Jury. It now becomes my duty to charge you to render your verdict in the case of the People against Vivienne Ware ....You must be governed by your own judgment as to whether, beyond all reasonable doubt, Vivienne Ware fired the shot that killed Damon Fenwicke...If, in your minds, there is not a reasonable doubt that this defendant is the person who killed Damon Fenwicke, you must find her guilty of murder in the first degree. If there is in your minds a reasonable doubt, you must acquit her...."

M. H. Aylesworth, generalissimo of the N. B. C., has called the broadcast an epochal event. His classification seems to this observer accurate. Certainly, such a radio offering, linking the newspaper and legal worlds for the broadcast of a murder trial, fictional though it may be, is unprecedented.

In showing on the air for the first time the play of human emotions as they are customarily on view in that most dramatic of all settings of civilization, the courtroom of a murder trial, the broadcasters can deservedly point to a new epoch in radio entertainment.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Carnegie Tech's battle with W. & J. at Pitt Stadium this Saturday, for the benefit of Mayor Charles Kline's relief fund, is to be broadcast by KDKA and KQV. Listeners are to be asked to contribute 25c cents each to the fund.

Announcers booked are Bill Farren and Howard Harpster for KDKA; Paul J. Miller and Jack Buchheit for KQV. Max Hannum is to give a resume at the "half." John S. Herron, president of City Council, has been invited to speak.

Between the lines of this latest concession by Pitt Stadium authorities is the intimation that all football games may be broadcast next year. It's not a promise but a likelihood, say those "in the know."

Although Ambrose J. Weems (Frank Knight) is in the city to present "Microphobia" at Syria Mosque tonight, there are still enough of his playmates left in New York to present "Curkoos" for KDKA at 10:30. Frank has asked for a set backstage that he may hear his proteges perform.

Sam Pickard, vice president of CBS, stopped at WJAS yesterday to visit H. J. Brennan and Bob Thompson. Sam wears the nattiest suits and has Class A jokes.

FALSE ALARM

Mr. Pickard tells this one about the elderly judge who dozed off occasionally during a trial.

A life insurance case was being tried. At the very beginning of it, the judge fell asleep.

After 30 minutes examination and cross-examination of witnesses, the judge woke up just as the opposing attorneys wished to present their pleas to the jury.

"Here," exclaimed the patron of Morpheus, "You fellows have been talking for an hour about this insurance case, but no one yet has told me where the fire was. Tell us something about this fire before we go on."

Another time this judge woke from his sleep, slammed the gavel and cried "Silence," only to find the court had been deserted by all except the tipstaff.

Sam knows these jokes best because he once was a judge—on the Federal Radio Commission.

YOUNGSTOWN, Nov. 25.—Negotiations toward merger of the Newton Steel Company with the Corrigan-McKinney Steel Company, Cleveland, an interest controlled by C. S. Int. Rustless Iron Stricken From List

"Is his head in a barrel?"

If a man's voice on your radio sounds as though his head were in a barrel, don't blame him. Distortion of this kind is caused by over-emphasis of low frequencies in the receiver. It means that reproduction of both vocal and instrumental entertainment is unnatural—that you are not getting the kind of enjoyment modern radio can and should give you.

When you check the new Grebe for tone, see whether you can detect the slightest trace of "head-in-a-barrel" effect. Mark the lifelike quality of this set over the entire tonal range—among the high and low frequencies. Your nearest Grebe dealer will gladly demonstrate and give you a 7-check test list to help you appraise any set from every point of view.

Gangsters Raid Hide-Away Of Stolen Dope

CHAPTER XVII.

The invincible yen-yen for opium that Silk Freeman, with his titan will power, had been able to control (for he smoked but once a day and always at the same hour), fell on him when he entered his devastated apartment a few minutes after Tommy Gillespie and Cyclone Tim McClosky had torched through his steel door, knocked out and crippled two guards, tied up the old ex-convict, Pete, and rescued Alice Schuyder.

The Big Boy, who only recently had given away to his passions, both love and anger, found himself now so completely unnerved and maddened by this latest diablerie, that he sought detachment in the pipe.

He quickly opened the toy of opium, a choice Persian brand, high in morphine content, and dug out with the needle a bit of the black, gummy substance. He lit the small lamp and then he played with the opium on the bowl of his pipe, rolling it back and forth into a little pellet.

Glasson Gets Orders

Then he jabbed it into the tiny hole in the center of the bowl, and without lying down on his side as was his habit, he sat on the couch and turned the pipe over the small blue flame. The opium sputtered and crackled, and Silk sucked the black smoke into his lungs in one long, ecstatic inhalation.

Then another pill, and still another cooked on his pipe and he felt the soft embrace of the drug around his jangling brain.

The telephone at his side rang. He appeared not to hear it, and then, after the bell had tinkled six times he took up the receiver, holding his smoking pipe in one hand.

He turned again to his pipe. He now inhaled his tenth draw and he laid the stem aside. His face was a pasty mask of hatred.

"Get these muggs out of here!" he said curtly to his two bodyguards, waving toward the wounded men.

"Get a doctor for 'em—you know who I mean—and straighten up this joint."

Biff Glasson, king of the Bridge Twisters mob, was there in five minutes. He took one look at the chaotic, blood-spattered room, another at the chalk-white, leering face of Silk, and sniffed the opium fumes but made no comment. When he entered, Silk turned on him quickly.

"Now I won't stomach any more kid glove stuff!" he stormed. "I want you to clean out that McClosky mob and clean 'em out like crabs."

"Listen, B. B." raucously growled Biff. "I've got that million bucks o' heroin spotted. It's salted away in a cockroach palace on Cherry street, and I got a place rented right across the way. I'm ripe to shoot."

"You—you've found that dope?" cried Silk, planting himself squarely in front of the gang leader. Then a wicked smile played on his curling lips. "That's great. Grab it off quick. But get me that McClosky mob at the same time. Here's five grand workin' capital. Clean up!"

Cherry street, on Manhattan's lower East Side, was once the heart of the fashionable district.

Cherry Hill, the highest point on the street, was the playground of some of New York's toughest gangs. There were the Daybreak Boys, the Buckoos, Hookers, Swamp Angels, Slaughter Housers, Short Tails, Patsy Conroys and the Border Gang.

Tough Neighborhood

Today it is far more peaceful, for the gangsters and the crooks have moved uptown to the environs of Broadway. A section of a score of blocks between Broadway and Fifth avenue and Forty-sixth to Fifty-fifth street houses more speakeasies, dope dens, take joints, badger apartments, "call" dives, than probably any other equal acreage in this country.

The only semblance of the old-time lawlessness of the Lower East Side was to be found in the two rival gangs—the River Rats and the Bridge Twisters.

And now Biff Glasson gloried in the revenge he would have on Cyclone Tim and his gang. He had already spotted the hijacked dope.

So, at noon the next day—the day following his talk with Silk Freeman—he gathered together his entire gang in his speakeasy hangout in South street.

"I don't want no shootin'—this time," Biff's voice was low and guttural, "De shootin'll come soon enough—for we're goin' to clean out dat whole River Rat mob. But first we've got to get dat dope. It's somewheres in dat buildin' and we only got a few ginks to deal wid."

He paused and looked around into the grimy, leering faces.

"One t'ing more," he growled. "I want McClosky fer me own meat. Get me? I don' want nobody to croak dat hoodlum but Biff Glasson. But on dis foist job, knives and blackjacks, unless—"

He never finished the sentence, and the grunts about him told him he did not need to. The men filed out, their weapons bulging beneath their dirty clothes. A dozen of them piled into a covered truck. The rest got into six cars and the caravan started toward Cherry street with Biff Glasson in the first car.

He knew that the McClosky guards were changed at noon and it was now 12:30 o'clock. The six cars drew up at either end of the block—three on the north end and three on the south. The truck was driven directly in front of the house. At the corner one of Biff's lookouts was waiting for him.

Raid Successful

"De two guys went in, but de udder two is still in dere," he informed the leader.

He gave a signal, and followed by a dozen of his mob walked briskly down the street to the tenement house. Those in the truck jumped out and Biff gave his instructions in short, curt words.

He put a finger on one after the other. The men swarmed into the dirty hallway and shuffled up the stairs.

Biff Glasson took the steps three at a time. Hungry Joe and his men had come up the stairs just as the two McClosky mobsters were leaving the apartment. The two guards had jumped back through the door, but not before Hungry Joe and three others got inside. Someone had bolted the door then and the eight men inside began fighting it out.

With a mighty running kick, Biff Glasson rammed his weight against the door. It burst open and he stumbled over the body of Hungry Joe, lying on the small kitchen floor. A dozen of his men followed him. In the next room of the flat he found two men on the floor, squirming and pummelling each other. Biff cracked one on the head with a blackjack and the man fell back with a moan. He made the rear room just in time to see one of the River Rats, blood streaming from a gash in his head, crawl out on the fire escape.

Cyclone Tim McClosky was just tossing off a barbed drink when Goo Goo Kurtz, who had escaped from Biff Glasson, staggered into the saloon, blood spurting from a wound in his head.

"Dey—dey copped de dope," he murmured weakly, and fell to the floor. "Dey're dere now, Glasson's wit' 'em——" and he could say no more.

DAILY TRUE STORY -:- -:- Climax Needed

"Good morning, Professor."

Prof. Kenneth Thorpe, with his frayed brief case filled with class papers, paused as he heard the soft voice and tried to get his thoughts from a thesis on El Cid back to Maple St., Springville.

"Er—" he peered down into the smiling and pretty face of Edna Colton. "—er, good morning, Miss Colton, beautiful morning."

"Wonderful. Have you any geniuses in your new class?"

Prof. Thorpe smiled.

"Genius is difficult to define—and more difficult to find, Miss Colton. How are you progressing with your novel—you were writing a novel, weren't you, when you were in my class?"

"Oh, yes, but then, everyone in your classes is secretly writing a novel—that's not much of a guess."

"Still working on it, Miss Colton—polishing it off into a literary masterpiece?"

"Dear me, no, Prof. Thorpe—I'm awfully commercial, I prefer royalties to fame—royalties buy more clothes and things. My first novel didn't set the literary world afire."

"Your first—really, have you had a novel published?"

"There—see? You never even heard of it."

They approached the little cottage where Edna lived with her people.

"Do come in a moment, professor. I'll get you a copy. Some day you may find time to read it and pick it to pieces for me."

Prof. Thorpe hesitated, but Edna smiled and it seemed to him that her dark curls and blue eyes made up an unusually satisfactory Irish brunette type.

He went up and sat on the porch, red-screened with the crimson woodbine. Edna went in and got the novel.

"I won't ascribe it as being written by one of your English classes, it might not reflect much credit on you, but do skim over it and tell me just how terrible it is."

Thorpe lifted his unbecoming shapeless felt hat and went on up Maple street to the college.

Two weeks passed.

Edna sent the professor a polite little note, asking if he could call soon and tear her first novel to shreds, critically. To her delight he telephoned her shortly after this.

"I have read your—er—novel, Miss Colton," he said.

"And laughed and shuddered, in turn, I know. Well, don't embarrass me by telling me over the telephone, please, come over when you can."

Novel Interesting

"Delighted, honored—I'll be waiting," Edna said.

She promptly broke a date with two girl friends for that evening and awaited Prof. Thorpe.

He sauntered over about 9. Edna took him into the cozy little living room and introduced him to her mother, whereupon Mrs. Colton, being a bright little woman, chatted a few minutes, made excuses and departed.

"Eh? Oh, your novel. Well—er——"

He paused, fished into his brief case, which seemed eternally within his reach, and brought forth the novel, with some papers in it.

"It was not without considerable interest," he said.

"That's good."

"Indeed? I scarcely agree. Literature—"

He hesitated.

"But my dear Professor, it isn't literature. It is just a novel. If I can write a novel that holds interest, what are a few split infinitives or a lapse in syntax? Interesting novels sell and, by selling, bring me royalties. I am going to show you something—"

Edna went to a Governor Winthrop desk and brought forth a publisher's statement of the first six months sales.

"Really—you amaze me—that's an astonishingly large sum. I know of many excellent scholars who have written little masterpieces and yet they haven't realized a quarter of that amount."

Edna laughed gaily.

"I shall shock you—I care not who writes the literary masterpieces so long as I can write junk that brings in royalties."

"I see," he said.

Another Visit

They talked a long while. She told him of another novel she was working on.

"A little later I may need your help—some advice as to my climax—you were always strong for a logical climax, in your lectures, professor."

"Well, if I may be of any help, I'll drop in again."

He dropped in again, bringing her two helpful volumes on writing.

After some weeks Edna unblushingly telephoned him.

"Oh, professor," she said, "I'm stuck—I can't get a good climax for my new novel and my publishers are nagging me for the manuscript. Could you find time to drop in and help me?"

"Gladly, my dear Miss Colton."

She thanked him and did a few dance steps after hanging up the telephone receiver.

The professor came over that evening.

He apologized for being late. Edna served some dainty refreshments and then got out a folio of typewritten notes.

"My heroine is in love with an estimable man who doesn't love her, and she doesn't love any of the dozen young men who are constantly pleading with her to say 'yes.'" What shall I do?

"Have her find another man—if this man doesn't love her, she would be unhappy if they married, and she cannot propose, and she should er—seek another."

"Oh, but this man really does love her only he doesn't quite suspect that it is genuine love. Furthermore, he is an awfully bashful man, he hasn't the slightest idea in the world that the girl loves him and he hasn't the courage to ask her and find out."

"That," the professor said, "puts a different aspect on it."

"I know it. But I cannot get my climax right. I don't know what to do."

"You might have your girl be very tender with this man and make him finally realize her true affections for him."

"Oh, I've had her very tender and all that, but I cannot get enough of a climax to just have a punch finish—a regular climax. Please suggest something, Prof. Thorpe."

Professor Proposes

"Why—er—after all, I'm an instructor in literature, but not an author. I am—er—like the chap who admitted he couldn't lay an egg, but insisted he was a better judge of an omelet than any hen. I couldn't write a novel, you know."

"I hoped that some little idea you might have would help me. I simply must have my climax."

Well, how about a sort of Myles Standish Priscilla and John Alden arrangement, only the emissary sent doesn't go to the girl, he goes to the—er—rather stupid me."

"That's been done to death in stories. I might have her tell him that in this age she believes woman has as much right to propose as a man—but that's been done so often."

"Have some sort of an accident, Miss Colton, and they face grave danger and——"

"Oh, professor, that stunt has been worked to death." Edna became pensive for a moment. "Well, how about this, professor—you see, my hero in this new novel is a college professor. Now suppose I have this girl take up writing—and then I have her get this professor to advise her—and she outlines her plot and in this way let him know that she has used herself as the heroine has used him as the hero and his eyes are suddenly opened—he sees it all, and he proposes at once."

"Good," Professor Thorpe exclaimed, "very good. Does she accept him, in your novel?"

"Of course she does."

"Well then, Edna, I have your climax—will you be my wife?"

"Oh, I'll make him propose more romantically—"

"Hang your book characters, I am proposing to you, and even if my method is not romantic or mushy, it is sincere, will you be my wife, Edna?"

"Yes, Kenneth!"

How Big Deals Are Made in This Land of Opportunity

This is no time for salesmanagers, drummers, factory representatives, public relations counselors and house detectives to complain of tough times.

If you are half the men we think you are, you'll go out and get business while your competitor swivels and whines.

Come, come! Buck up!

That's what Cantalever Dunkes did. He got tired of shivering in parks. He rummaged aroound in his mind until he found an idea. He figured out how many social lodges and clubs there are in America—176,898. These organizations use 476,898 blackballs every week. Cantalever went aroound, talked to the members and convinced them that it would be a good idea to try Smith Brothers cough drops for blackballs. Now all he has to do is arrange with the Smith Brothers for a commission, and another big deal will go down in the history of this glorious land, while thousands of lodge members will have a better time at their meetings, and no one will be the wiser.

Wasson Quits

His Resignation as Supreme Court Attorney Should Have Salutary Effect On Legal Profession.

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court has granted Henry G. Wasson's request that his name be stricken from its list of attorneys.

Wasson quits while under fire, for the Supreme Court was considering the recommendation of the majority members of a committee of masters that he be disbarred.

They recommended that Wasson be disbarred because, they said, investigation had disclosed that he mismanaged the estate of an insane woman which had been entrusted to his care and that of Attorney George H. Calvert.

The charges against Calvert are yet to be investigated. The Wasson case is presumably ended.

Wasson formerly was Republican county chairman and later a judge of the Common Pleas Court. It required a certain amount of courage to press disbarment charges against an attorney with his reputation for power and influence. Thanks are due the members of the Bar Association who did not shrink from the unpleasant duty.

There were those who felt the proceedings would reflect discredit on the legal profession. There would have been greater discredit in failing to institute them.

The outcome should have salutary effect.

Blue Law Poll

There Is Encouragement for Modification in Legislators' Answers to Questionnaire.

The outlook for modification, if not repeal, of the Blue Law of 1794, which makes innocent amusements unlawful on Sunday, was never brighter.

This opinion is based in part on replies sent by members of the Legislature to a questionnaire issued by the Philadelphia Record. The Record reported yesterday that it had already received answers from more than one-fourth of the 258 members and that they favored a change in the ratio of three to one.

It would be unsafe to predict modification before additional favorable answers are received, but there is encouragement in the attitude of legislators who might be expected to approve the Blue Law but instead incline towards amending it.

There is Elmer E. Squibb, of Berks County, who, at a previous session, voted against change, but is now quoted as saying he is not sure he will do so this time.

And there is the Rev. Frank W. Ruth, pastor of a Reformed church, who has also been elected to the Legislature from Berks County. He says his own community has no desire for Sunday movies, but he does not see any harm in such amusements and feels there should be local option in regard to the matter.

The Record reports that not one of the 41 members from Philadelphia, not one of the 26 Allegheny County members, has so far expressed himself in favor of the Blue Law.

While the outlook is hopeful, however, it would be premature to say the battle for a sensible Sunday law has been won. A vigorous campaign must be waged.

Gallons of Beetles

Inspection of Automobiles Is Designed to Protect Western Pennsylvania from a Bad Pest.

If you were driving towards Pittsburgh from Southeastern Pennsylvania last summer your car may have been stopped by government officials who inquired if you were carrying any vegetable products that might be harboring Japanese beetles.

Possibly you may have thought the procedure rather foolish. If so, consider this: A report on the ravages of the beetle mentions that workers of the Department of Agriculture, working in the infested area, picked 280 gallons of the insects from 150 peach trees one morning, and next morning the beetles seemed to be as thick on the trees as before the collection was made.

The beetle is extending the limits of its domain by a few miles every year. Inspection of the 1,271,444 cars that were stopped by the quarantine men may have prevented its getting into the Pittsburgh district ahead of time.

Do It Now

This Is Logical Time to Build Navy to Highest Standard of Efficiency.

If President Hoover is ever going to carry out the naval program pledged by his administration and really build the ships that the Navy urgently needs, now is the time to do it.

Building up the Navy now toward the limit fixed by the London Naval Treaty will do more to reduce unemployment in all parts of the country than can be done by expanding and expediting any other part of the federal program of public works.

Of the total cost to be spent upon the ships called for in this program, it is estimated that 80 per cent will go for American labor composed of almost every known craft.

Not only will labor along both coasts benefit by this expenditure, but labor in every state of the Union will benefit also, because the materials for these ships will come from all parts of the country.

Building up the Navy now will be good business for the government and wise economy for the taxpayers. Building materials are cheaper now than they have been in a long time—cheaper probably than they will be a few years hence.

There is an abundance of labor to be had now at a reasonable wage, eager for work, and badly in need of work.

Building up the Navy now to that "equality with the strongest," which is the established naval policy of the American people, is the best safeguard of peace and protection that the government of the United States can provide.

Naval opinion is united upon a reasonable program of new construction for the next fiscal year. This program, the Navy Department will urge upon the Congress if only the President will carry out his promises and take the lead in its support.

Public sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of building up the Navy now and keeping it at the highest possible standard of efficiency.

It will cost considerably less than a dollar a piece for all Americans if the President and the Congress will follow the advice of the Navy Department and carry out the program for new construction which it favors.

It will put many a dollar into the pockets of American wage earners north, east, south and west at a time when they and their families need the money if the Navy Department's program is adopted at the short session.

The policy of the administration in all necessary matters involving large construction and employment should be—

DO IT NOW.

Fly Swatter Or Big Stick? -:- -:-

Like the serpent in the fable
Lawlessness has been permitted
To lie basking on the hearthstone
Where it has been tolerated,

While it greatly thrived and flourished
Growing larger, waxing stronger,
Until now its deadly menace
Must be met with drastic action.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

We'll Take the Neck

We will instruct you how to pick out your Thanksgiving turkey with the maximum of resistance and the minimum of nutrition.

No woman and no butcher ever agreed on the proper bird for the table.

After a Texas eagle has been stripped down to racing speed and has been hanging by his neck for a week it is difficult to tell what he is.

The lady shopper seems to think she should have some say in the purchasing department. While the butcher seems to think the selection of the turkey should be left entirely to the bird.

The best way to test a turkey is to poke it with your finger. If it snaps back at you, it's a parrot.

If it has got webbed feet it ain't responsible for the way it's advertised.

There is nothing beautiful about a turkey hanging on the hook. It seems to be mostly wings, ailerons and landing gear with very little fuselage.

Of course, he is different after you get his tail greased with butter for that record breaking channel swim in hot gravy.

Then you stuff him with bread crumbs, raisins and chestnuts, slap him in the face with cranberry stuff and build him a memorial shaft of mashed potatoes.

He perishes nobly in that manner. And although we have not yet heard from Sir Conan Doyle, we almost believe in reincarnation when old pal turkey keeps coming back during December in the form of sandwiches, hash and croquettes.

Although Rhode Island and Texas turks have been standard for years, President Hoover will scoff at a bird that lost a close decision in Maryland.

There will be no old-fashioned turkey shoots this week. The last one was held in Cicero in 1928 and the turkey was the only one that escaped.

Different authorities have various recipes for turkey sauce. Some chefs prefer gravy that you could mend cracked mirrors with. Others like a thin batter of flour and currants. Turkey with apple jelly is good.

THE EARTH IS SMALL

By Archibald Henderson

The scientists of today—anthropologists, biologists, astronomers, geologists—are all concerning themselves, more and more, with the problem of life in the universe. All the studies made, by countless investigators, have not, thus far, led to the discovery and proof of life in the extra-mundane universe approximating those of the human species. Our own planet is so negligibly small in comparison with the rest of the universe — suns, stars, planets, globular clusters, island universes —that it prompts the query as to whether it is not an accidental by-product of physical forces. All such reasoning is made irrespective of one's individual faith in a creator of the universe.

As we stand in face of the immensities and appalling magnitudes of physical nature, it is little wonder that a sense of dread, amounting almost to fear, comes to obsess our minds. This vast universe is really so alien to men, so heedless of his hopes and fears, his longings and aspirations. Nature's reaction to man is always forced, never spontaneous. Nature is responsive to us, only because we will it and contrive the character of that response. At times, indeed, it seems that nature is not content to be indifferent to us; she is actually hostile. Unless we continue to exert ourselves, to maintain persistently the struggle for existence, we go under. In time of famine, plague, disaster, man seems but a tiny, helpless fighter against the all-powerful enemy, nature.

Life itself is not within our control. In the final analysis, we are totally dependent upon something outside the earth and entirely beyond our management: the sun. The empty space which constitutes such a preponderant part of the universe is cold; in most of it life could not be supported for want of heat.

Dotted about through the universe are great reservoirs of energy, burning furnaces of heat and light, giving out radiation which warms the frozen interspaces and maintains life somewhere. There are few regions in the universe, so far as we can discover, where life could be permanently maintained. Such place would have to lie within a certain temperate zone, created in the neighborhood of these focal points of light and heat.

Here and there, scattered throughout the universe, are central suns, with planets revolving around them. Surely there must be planets bearing relations to these suns as the earth is related to our sun. But computation shows that such combinations are really very few and far between. According to the modern tidal theory, the planets of our system were thrown off by the sun as the result of the near approach of some large wanderer of the skies. Such near approaches, we find, are rare—only about one star in every 100,000 having a planet revolving around it in the small zone in which life is possible.

Speaking from the standpoint of the astronomer, Sir James Jeans, in The Mysterious Universe, outspokenly says, "If we dismiss every trace of anthropomorphism from our minds, there remains no reason for supposing that the present laws were specially selected in order to produce life. They are just as likely, for instance, to have been selected in order to produce magnetism or radio — activity — indeed, more likely, since to all appearances physics plays an incomparably greater part in the universe than biology, viewed from a strictly material standpoint, the utter insignificance of life would seem to go far towards dispelling any idea that it forms a special interest of the Great Architect of the Universe."

Religious consolation, faith in a future life, are not supplied us by the rich discoveries of modern science. Life exists, and there is, we cannot doubt, a purpose in it all. A scientific answer to the question, What IS THAT PURPOSE, has not yet been found.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I'm the world's worst poker player—

I CAN NEVER MAKE UP MY MIND TO "PASS."

I always want to stay in the game and take a chance.

Even when I'm only holding a couple of two-spots, I want to bluff it through and see what happens.

And, believe me, that desire has cost me plenty in poker—

ALSO IN LIFE!

For life and poker are all of a piece.

You take the hand as it's dealt to you. You discard, and arrange a new hand, according to your wisdom. Then you play—

Or, if you're a safety-first guy, you just sit tight and pass.

Playing safe—passing up the risks—

And that's probably sensible.

But, as I said before, I've never been able to do it.

And if you were to read the story of my life—one of those true stories that people never write—you'd probably say I had been a fool for not passing.

Well . . . maybe. But I'm not sorry—

I'm GLAD!

I'm glad I stayed in and took all the chances there were.

For the hurt I've given others—

I'm sorry and ashamed.

But most of the times I tried desperately not to hurt, and I wasn't flippant. I was in earnest. If I was a fool, I was at least a serious fool.

I wanted to know.

AND I FOUND OUT.

I found out plenty.

Plenty about life and plenty about myself—

And a lot of it wasn't pleasing.

But it was all TRUTH—

And Truth, as I see it, IS WORTH ANYTHING IT COSTS.

For—though maybe I'm wrong—it seems to me that the greatest thing a man can do is to seek the Truth, even if he busts himself in so doing. Which, the chances are, he will!

Of course I'll admit that if he'll play safe—

And pass, unless he's sure he'll win.

But for me, I'd rather lose all my money and all my name.

AND HAVE THE PRIDE AND PUNCH OF PLAYING THE GAME.

AND OF FINDING OUT WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT.

BUT I PREFER TO PLAY AS IF I HAD A FULL HOUSE

AND WERE GOING TO SIT IN FOREVER.

However, let me hasten to add—

This is not given as good advice.

What's meat for me may be poison for any other man.

So—play the game as you see it,

Or pass, if that's your code—

But as for me, I'm staying in—

And while there's a card in the deck—

I'M NOT GOING TO PASS.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Some Time

We will smile at what today
Seems so drear;
We will wonder, looking back,
Why our future path loomed black,
Filled with fear.
Some time we will turn aside
From all folly, falsehood, pride,
And will know
That the grief so hard to bear
And the burden of despair
Helped us grow.
When with clearer eyes we see,
Puzzles of today will be Understood.
Some time (why not make it now?
We shall joyously avow
Life is good!

Text For Today Ask and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.—Matthew, vii: 7.

A Savage Weapon

Childishly Useless Against Modern Arms.

SALUTING HIS CHIEF.

The knife is held up to salute the chief of the tribe, and the warrior looks at the chief through the holes in the combination knife and ax.

And yet a million savages armed with these hatchet-knives would be utterly useless in modern war. As they started their charge, howling and brandishing these African "meat cleavers" machine guns would rattle, and they would be mowed down like ripe grain before the scythe, or a barrage of explosive bullets from bigger guns would blow the savages to pieces, 100 at a time.

Or perhaps their charge would carry them into a zone supplied with poisonous gas—that would cause them and their weapons to sink to the earth together.

The average man looks on this picture and the African weapon as primitive, a part of LONG AGO.

The scientific eye sees in this sharp blade made of iron a product that in the history of human beings is INTENSELY MODERN.

Dr. Osborne, learned head of the New York Museum of Natural History, says it can be proved that men of various types have lived upon the earth at least FORTY MILLION YEARS.

Yet only 12,000 years ago they were in the Stone Age; their only weapons were sharpened flints, sharp pieces of wood hardened in the fire, sharpened bones or teeth of animals, bows and arrows, and rude spears.

The Bronze Age with its soft metallic weapons and instruments came afterward. This piece of sharpened steel held up by the savage represents a high degree of industrial development that took millions upon millions of years for its production.

And now, suddenly, in our age of poison gas, machine guns, high explosives, the hideous sharp weapon of steel becomes a mere child's toy, as worthless and unimportant now in war as the bow and arrow would have been 100 years ago.

When science starts it moves rapidly. Through millions of years men traveled on foot or on the backs of animals. Then, within the past 100 years, came the steamboat, the steam locomotive, and life changed.

Few of us realize that before steam came the population of Great Britain, now over 40,000,000, was only 6,000,000. Without steam and the industries that it created the lands that now support 40,000,000 could support 6,000,000 only.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The saxophone goes the way of the bicycle to oblivion. While the present crop of tooters are not casting the instrument aside, there are few fledglings to take their places. The accordion is gradually supplanting the sax in collegiate popularity.

The accordion has not suffered the comic paper stigma accorded the saxophone. Parents associated it with wide pants, postage stamp caps and gin gurgling. A big musical house reports selling four accordions to one saxophone with college boys leading in the purchases.

Rudy Vallee's furore gave the sales of saxophones a spurt they never enjoyed before. Thousands of impressionable young men decided to use them as alpenstocks to scale their Matterhorns. But this increased the kidding and frightened off the timid.

Phil Baker's popularity as a smart talker interpolating arias from his snow-white accordion appealed to many youngsters who secretly desired to emulate him. Night clubs featured accordionists. The technique is comparatively easy and the music blends with moonlight romance.

Nevertheless many young men owe a debt of gratitude to the saxophone. During summer vacations they have been able to join liner and coastwise steamer orchestras and see a drab world turn magical. Any number "saxophoned" their way through college.

Also doctors often recommend saxophone blowing as a remedy for bronchial troubles. Among notables reported to be mastering the accordion in leisure moments are the Prince of Wales, King Alfonso and Michael Arlen.

Few actors have gripped their public as long as Charlie Chaplin. Ten years is considered an almost impossible stretch for popularity to remain at its peak. Yet there is as much interest today in a Chaplin picture as when he made his enormous hit 17 years ago.

One wonders what happened to the old London barfly from whom Chaplin admits he acquired his famous mannerisms—the shuffling walk, quick heel turns and derby tip. The old fellow held horses in front of a pub and was especially amusing when in his cups. Chaplin used to mimic him for boys in his neighborhood.

Chaplin had many imitators who annoyed him, several being stopped by legal injunctions. His fruity comedy was literally squeezed out of a boyhood of frustration. He was in an English poorhouse for years and when he got his first chance at a job suffered an accident from which his eyesight was believed lost.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There is more than one way to be a drunkard.

To eat too rich food at any time you feel like it is harmful. Yet there are many persons who will indulge themselves.

Reason does not enter when desire governs.

To cut down rest periods, and wreck the nervous system to accomplish something because it interests you, is another form of indulgence.

Nothing worth the price of ruining health can be gained, but there are plenty of people who consider themselves the exceptions.

There are so many forms of intemperance.

The person who has indulgences that are harmful, the "make whoopee" butterfly, keeping late hours and sleeping away the daylight, are topers in their way, even though they do not touch strong liquor.

The business man, who burns the candle at both ends, working hard all day and attending dinners and banquets, toasting and being toasted, even though he sips nothing stronger than water, is drunk on functions.

The church member, who is frail but attends every meeting, rain or shine, and coughs and sneezes, spreading disease, is a good case as an intemperate.
